Ford plans summit on economic woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is moving swiftly to plan an economic summit conference to battle inflation which he labeled "Domestic Enemy No. 1." And he is pressing Congress to act within 10 days to revive the government's tools to monitor wages and prices.

Key congressional Democrats moved quickly today to fulfill Ford's request to reactivate the Cost of Living Council to monitor wages and prices.

But they pointedly were not predicting that either the proposed summit or the renewed wage-price monitoring would bring a quick end to inflation.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee said a bill to reactivate the Cost of Living Council will be introduced promptly and considered by the committee on Wednesday.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he plans to meet with Senate leaders to discuss expediting the legislation.

Congressional Democrats joined Republicans in applauding the tone of Ford's presidential keynote speech Monday night. But some said they will have to be convinced the new President can find the correct cure for the nation's soaring prices.

Ford spoke to a packed House chamber and millions across the country, calling on Congress to join "in getting this country revved up and moving" and pledging to seek a balanced federal budget in the fiscal year starting next July 1.

He never referred directly to the Watergate scandal that drove Richard M. Nixon from the presidency last week but pledged, "There will be no illegal tapings, eavesdropping, buggings or break-ins by my administration."

And Ford mentioned his predecessor's name only once, declaring he has supported and will continue "the outstanding foreign policy of President Nixon."

He made no mention of perhaps his most immediate problem —the choice of a new vice president. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said earlier Monday Ford is "nowhere near" making a decision.

At the invitation of the Fords, the former president's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, and her husband David joined the new First Family in the Executive Gallery. The former President watched at his San Clemente, Calif., home and wired Ford: "Congratulations on a Splendid Speech."

On the floor of the House chamber, an unusually large number of congressmen and senators were present to hear the 38th President outline his goals for the two-year, five-month remainder of Nixon's shattered presidency.

Ford proposed little specific legislation—the wage-price monitoring authority now and a health insurance measure before the end of the year.

And he said the nation's voters should support the candidates this November "who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain federal spending and bring inflation under control."

Waves of cheers and applause thunderd across the cavernous chamber as Ford was escorted in. And members of both parties cheered when the 25-year congressional veteran declared his motto towards Congress: "Communication,

Man found dead in car

William Otis Holley, 64, of Portageville was found dead at 7:40 p.m. Monday behind the steering wheel of his station wagon, which was parked with the engine running on the west shoulder of Highway 61 two and one -half miles south of Sikeston, the highway patrol reported today.

A patrol spokesman said Holley's body was discovered by Jimmy Lee Peavy, 33, of Sikeston Route Three after Peavy noticed the car parked with the engine running. Residents of the area said the car had been parked in that area since about 3 p.m.

New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton ruled that Holley died of natural caused.

Clayton said it appeared that Holley had been dead from three to four hours and that he had a history of heart trouble.

Although the car motor was still running and the windows were closed except for one which was slightly open, Clayton reported no signs of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Holley was an electrician and had reportedly been to Sikeston to buy some electrical supplies.

The body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid, then moved to Smith Funeral Home in Caruthersville, where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Election contested

CHARLESTON — A petition was filed today in Mississippi County Circuit Court by W. H. Winchester Jr. contesting the outcome of the race for presiding judge of the County Court in the Aug. 6 primary election, in which Ralph Adkisson received an official count of 2,036 votes to Winchester's 2,032 votes.

A hearing on the petition has been set for 9 a.m. Friday in Circuit Court.

The petition states that Winchester, the incumbent, desires to challenge the correctness of the tabulation of votes for the presiding judge office.

Charges set forth in the petition include:

— In Charleston voting precinct 4, there was an irregularity on the tally sheets wherein the total votes give Adkisson on the original tally sheet were 253, when the total votes as indicated by individual tallies were actually only 153.

— In The Bertrand precinct irregularities were found on the face of the tally sheets in that the total on one tally sheet did not equal the total tally of the other sheet in the race for state auditor or in the race for associate judge of the County Court first district.

— In the Wyatt precinct irregularities were found in tally sheets in that the totals of one tally sheet did not match totals of the other tally sheets in the face for 10th District U. S. representative and in the race for state representative of Distict 160.

In East Prairie precinct 1 and Charleston precinct 5 (rural) irregularities were made in the tally sheets of each precinct in that the totals on said tally sheets did not conform to one another in the vote on the county zoning proposal.

— In East Prairie precinct 1 there were irregularities in the counting of the ballots in that only one election judge and two election clerks were present when the count of the ballots was made, therefore there was no election judge present to watch the ballots as they were counted to insure no mistakes were made as required by the statutes of the State of Missouri.

— In the Anniston precinct there were irregularities in the counting of ballots, in that only one election judge and two election clerks were present when the counting of the ballots was made, therefore, there was no election judge present to watch the ballots as they were counted to insure that no mistakes were made.

— There were more than four absentee ballots that were improperly challenged and not counted and that the counting of said ballots, which are greater than the margin of defeat, as more fully set out, places the

Landfill will be closed unless it is cleaned up

BENTON --The Missouri Division of Health informed the Scott County Court Monday that unless the sanitary landfill north of Morley meets state requirements within an adequate amount of time it will be closed. The warning was issued after state officials accompanied members of the County Court to the landfill site and discovered that it was being operated improperly.

Rick L. Roberts, chief of solid waste technical services, Bureau of Solid Waste Management, told the County Court in a meeting Monday that the sanitary landfill was not operating by the approved plans that had been submitted to the Division of Health.

The state officials will hold another meeting with the County Court at 9:30 a.m. Thursday to review approved engineer plans and to inform the court what it must do so the landfill will meet state approval.

According to Roberts, the landfill was first inspected in September of 1973 and at that time the operator, Raymond Glaus of Sikeston, was subleasing it from the court. Roberts said it was found at that time that the landfill was not being operated adequately and recommendations were submitted to Glaus concerning the situation. He said Glaus covered the refuse and allowed to continue operating the landfill.

After the County Court assumed the operation of the landfill in October of 1973, another investigation was conducted. According to Roberts, a letter was sent to Presiding Judge Les Lankford on Nov. 30 stating recommendations that should be made correcting the landfill. In the letter Roberts said it was stated that the site was definitely not being operated like a sanitary landfill should be.

Another investigation was conducted in January of 1974 and Roberts said it was found that the situation had not been corrected and the landfill was still being operated like a dump.

Roberts said he received a letter from Lankford, who said previous owners had not operated the landfill by approved engineer plans and the court anticipated that it would have the site developed by March 1.

According to Roberts, he informed C.R. Waters, the county engineer, of the letter he received and told Waters the landfill site had not been developed according to engineer plans and some improvements would have to be made. Roberts said previous landowners had not

Two hurt seriously in accidents

Two of six traffic accident victims received serious injuries in five accidents on area roads Monday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

William Henry Jones, 36, of Scott City received serious injuries in a two -car accident at 8:15 p.m. Monday on Interstate 55 half a mile south of Cape Girardeau.

The accident occurred when a car driven by James Kenneth Elkins, 31, of Union was traveling south in the northbound lane with headlights off and collided head on with the Jones vehicle.

Jones was taken to Southeast Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

A one -car accident at 10:50 p.m. Monday on Highway 72 two miles west of Jackson resulted in minor injuries to Mark Laclair, 16, of Jackson. Laclair was a passenger in a pickup truck driven west on Highway 72 by Harold Keith Ruesler, 17, of Jackson.

The highway patrol reported the Ruesler auto was traveling at an excessive rate of speed when the driver lost control on a curve and the vehicle skidded 411 feet, then overturned several times in a field.

Laclair was treated at Southeast Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Two persons received minor injuries in a one -car accident at 1 p.m. Monday on Route U one mile west of New Madrid.

Johnson received minor injuries, as did his wife, Doris Ann Johnson, 24, of New Madrid. They were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

One person received possibly serious injuries in a one -vehicle accident at 6:15 p.m. Monday on a sand road in New Madrid County one mile north of Howardville. The accident happened when a pickup truck driven by Ruby Lee Stevenson, 35, of Howardville ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment and some trees.

She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, where she refused to undergo treatment.

Rosemary Wright, 35, of Oxly was seriously injured at 2:35 a.m. today on Highway 160 one -half mile west of Doniphan when her westbound truck ran off the road over an embankment and overturned.

She was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Application for port authority to be submitted

CAPE GIRARDEAU -A temporary port authority committee from Cape Girardeau and Scott counties announced Monday that it will submit an application for joint port authority on Aug. 26 with the Department of Transportation at Jefferson City.

The committee made the decision during a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce building in Cape Girardeau.

Bob Hendrix, manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Cape Girardeau, said it was also decided that a committee will go to Memphis, Tenn, and Greenville, Miss. to examine their port authorities. The date for the trip will be scheduled during the Aug. 26 meeting.

FBI HITS
ITS STRIDE

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has given the American public a most successful report of his first year as head of the country's top law enforcement agency.

Three segments of the report are especially worthy of mention. Director Kelley says the agency is increasing its search for communist spies, bearing down on organized crime, and lifting the Bureau out of the influence of politics.

Regarding the hunt for communist espionage agents, Kelley pointed out that there is an increasing number of visitors from Communist nations pouring into the country, especially from China and the Soviet Union. This increase is calling for more counterspionage activity on the part of the FBI.

"We are redirecting some of our manpower in order that we might give this situation additional attention," he said. "We are giving it additional emphasis."

It is encouraging that the FBI Director has not been swayed by the so-called "liberal" media and politicians who try to pass off the legitimate search for communist spies in this country as "witch hunts."

Director Kelley's report points out that more than 1,250 from the ranks of organized criminals were convicted last year, and that 2,600 members of organized crime are currently being prosecuted. The report also records that last year, FBI investigation led to convictions in 15,240 cases.

Kelley also noted that a "major portion" of the FBI investigating efforts is being directed at kidnap cases. Most of the cases are successfully concluded with the victim returned, the kidnappers arrested and most, if not all, of the ransom money recovered. In fiscal 1974, 96 convictions were obtained in kidnapping cases.

Such a record is outstanding. We are proud of Director Kelley's record and urge all honest citizens to give the Bureau their full support.

Members of Congress pressing for sweeping national health insurance might ponder a Rand Corp. study released last week. The report, given scant attention in the press, concludes that a comprehensive program would swamp doctors' offices and outpatient clinics throughout the country. Result: Patients would experience delays in getting appointments and doctors would have less time to spend with them. Delays would cause some patients -- those with untreated glaucoma, for instance -- to suffer permanent eye damage or blindness.

INVOLUNTARY ENERGY
SERVITUDE

Petroleum industry leaders and other highly competent authorities have spoken in the strongest terms of the threat to national security implicit in growing American dependence on foreign oil imports. Typical of this view in the opinion of Dr. Richard J. Gonzalez of Houston, Texas, who testified before a Congressional Subcommittee on the necessity of encouraging more rapid development of potential U. S. resources of all forms of energy. Among other points he made was that heavy reliance on foreign oil "involves risks to national security and to freedom of action in international affairs."

Almost at the very moment he was testifying, foreign nations were using the club of petroleum to curb U. S. "... freedom of action in international affairs." A news dispatch in The Washington Post said, "A steadily hardening Egyptian reaction to the American decision to resume Phantom fighter - bomber deliveries to Israel is now leading to the possibility of threat to American oil interests in the Arab world." An Egyptian official, continued the report, "... urged the Arab states to agree to give no more concessions to American companies and to impose a 'liberation tax' on U. S. oil companies now operating in Arab countries."

As a matter of fact, the United States is periously close to a position of energy servitude. Dr. Gonzalez cited a number of factors which have raised this grim specter. These include: "... delays in Alaska, restrictions on the development of oil off the coast of California, delays in offshore leasing by the federal government, and opposition to offshore leasing along the East Coast ..."

Now that the public has seen how the club of petroleum imports can be used by a foreign power, the term national security should have greater meaning, and there should be less tolerance of those who have been more concerned with searching for and blocking the so-called "selfish" interest in assuring adequate energy supplies.

ECONOMIC DOUBLE
CROSS IN CHILE

Inflation is no respector of political labels. Chilean voters adopted a communist form of government because of the inability of the previous administration to halt inflation. Far from halting inflation, however, the Chilean switch in political philosophy has had no important impact on the course of inflation. In fact, the nation seems to have jumped from the frying pan into the fire. Gasoline prices have increased 20 per cent in recent months; required school uniforms, 30 per cent; airlines tickets, 15 per cent, etc.

A press report states, "Sudden price increases, erratic shortages and consumer spending at an intensive pace are symptoms of rising inflationary pressure, fed by huge emissions of currency and temporarily increased purchasing power in the hands of wage- earners." Price controls, it is said, have never been effecitve in stemming Chilean inflation. Chile, therefore, has become one more demonstration of the losing battle that any nation fights when government seeks to manage inflation with controls rather than balanced budgets.

MENACE OF
"CHEAP POWER"

Countless experts have made the observation that archaic regulation is the root of most of the troubles of the common carrier transportation industry. Other segments of the utility industry besides transportation are subjected to stringent rate regulation. The course this regulation now takes as regards the investor-owned electric light and power industry will largely determine the energy future of the United States -- or in plain language tomorrow's standard of living, tomorrow's environment and tomorrow's quality of life. All of these hinge upon an abundant supply of energy particularly electric energy.

Several months ago, Mr. Shearon Harris, the head of a major electric company and chairman of the Edison Electric Institute, reported that the electric industry must make research and development expenditures over the next 29 years at an average rate of $1.12 billion annually. But, he added, "Perplexing problems of financing are posed by the peculiar forces which inhibit R&D investment within regulated utilities. In our enterprise system, the profit motive normally stimulates investment in research and development. In the case of regulated utilities, which must pass along to the customer such benefits in the form of reduced rates, not only does the incentive not exist, but the system actually works in a counterproductive fashion ... It is essential that regulatory commissions recognize the research and development expenditures as allowable for rate- making purposes ..."

The costs of research and development in the utility industry as well as the costs of new plant construction and other facilities that will assure the adequacy of future energy supplies must be faced squarely by the energy- consuming public -- and by the authorities responsible for setting rates. In this case, an archaic regulatory approach, i.e. "cheap power" for the people, would constitute a clear and present threat to the basic energy supply of the U. S. as well as to the nation's hope of an improved environment.

POLITICAL SYRUP

Let someone suggest that expenditures for space exploration have been a good investment, and he is promptly shot down. However, the day of another story is coming. Dr. Wernher vonBraun gives a late report in Parade magazine.

Back in 1969, thanks to satellite pictures, the U. S. National Oceanic and Atmosphereic Administration has estimated that the lives of 50,000 people were saved that would otherwise have been in the path of Hurricane Camille when it hit the Gulf Coast. Also, Dr. Von Braun, former associate administrator of NASA, advises that, "Today satellites carry about half the world's international telephone, telegraph and television load ... Or take computers. The demands of space flight pushed computer technology forward so fast that it is an $8- billion- a - year industry that employs more than 800,000 people. Thousands of new products and industrial processes have been introduced as the result of the space program."

The list of benefits from space exploration will continue to pour in — notwithstanding the street corner skeptics who like the flavor of government projects best when they are covered with political syrup.

WOMEN'S INTUITION,
CURIOSITY VALUABLE

That Sixth Sense — intuition — which everyone ought to know women have in abundance, is being recognized as a valuable asset in the investigative field.

Pinkerson's Inc., an investigative firm, is recruiting women in its 105 offices across the United States. The applicants being sought will be investigators, store detectives, uniformed guards, airport security personnel, and campus patrol guards.

One basic qualification required for entering the security field, according to Pinkerton's, seems to be "curiosity." And, as everybody also ought to know, curiosity is as instinctive to a woman as intuition.

No peace abroad

The outbreak of fighting on Cyprus illustrates how delicate the peace of the world is. Oil has been poured on the troubled waters of the eastern end of the Mediterranean but the national passions and natural enmities of Greeks and Turks still run high there. Even as the great powers maneuver to put the lid on, some fighting continues. The world has not learned to live in peace.

Action on Cyprus came in the wake of a piecemeal solution of the war in the Middle East but a spark there could set off a conflagration. Vested interests of the great powers are even deeper in the Arab -Israeli area than on Cyprus but in these times it is difficult to isolate a war, and so Cyprus still poses a threat.

On the other side of the world, heavy fighting continues in Indochina despite the "peace" arrangements of the U.S. This is a continuation of the conflict that started in the 1950s and seems destined to continue forever. There seems to be no successful instrument of keeping the peace. Certainly the United Nations has not provided it anymore than did the League of Nations after World War I.

There are two things the United States can do to contribute to peace. It can keep open its good offices to other powers and aid in negotiations. It can keep its defenses honed. A strong American defense posture is the one factor in international politics the communists understand. HLH

Uncovered Angle? The Wiretap Law -- And Watergate

Ralph Salerno is more than a good friend. He is my idea of THE honest man. Certainly he is one of the land's most informed men --as compared with an agency --on the organized criminal syndicates which loot this nation of billions annually. For many years, young as he is now, he headed the famed New York City police "Mafia Desk." I asked him to look at the Watergate phenomenon and come up with an angle which has not been covered. Here's what he found, written exclusively for this column:

By Ralph Salerno
Chief investigator,
District Attorney's Office,
Queens County (N.Y.)
And author of
'The Crime Confederation'

NEW YORK -The number of words that have been expended in reporting and analyzing the Watergate case must total in the millions. Talk shows have had at it; print media has oversated the nation and transcripts of congressional hearings and released White House tapes have all come into the public domain. It seems remarkable that despite reporting from almost every angle a key aspect of the entire affair has escaped notice.

The minor matter of a break -in directed by political zealots exploded into much greater proportions when federal Judge John Sirica pried open the lips of James McCord, one of the conspirators. What has been overlooked, or at least insufficiently reported, is that to do so, the judge used for leverage the criminal sanctions of what had been a highly controversial piece of legislation only six years ago: Title III of the Omnibus Crime Bill and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Title III is the federal wiretap law which grants limited use of electronic surveillance to law enforcement, under court control, and expressly forbids all other uses as a serious violation of law. In 1963, Robert F. Kennedy, then Attorney General and a major proponent of the statute, graphically described its need in testimony before Sen. McClellan's Investigating Committee. He pointed out, "The present statute (Sec. 605 of the Federal Communications Act) fails to protect the right of privacy over the telephone because anyone can listen without violating that statute. At present, to convict someone of illegal wiretapping, we must not only prove that a tap was made but also that there was unlawful disclosure of the conversation." In other words, just being caught in the basement of the Watergate as the burglars were would not have substantiated a wiretap charge under the old law. Sirica would not have been able to impose a sentence of six years and eight months on Gordon Liddy, and the threat of a one -year sentence for breaking in would probably not have swayed McCord.

The position of various key players in the ensuing drama with regard to the wiretap law that made it all possible is interesting. Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina does not favor wiretapping and has helped prevent enactment of such legislation in his home state. His chief counsel, Samuel Dash, was an outspoken apponent of Title III. Ramsey Clark when Attorney General joined President Lyndon Johnson in violent opposition to the enactment of the statute. Leon Jaworski while serving on the President's Crime Commission voted against it. There are many people who challenged Kennedy's position who appear to be enjoying important roles in the situation his statute brought about.

It is a paradox then that "The Watergate mess in Washington" is serving to defeat attempts to get similar legislation enacted in Iowa, Texas, California and elsewhere. Watergate should have made the point that, in the hands of a judge with the backbone to use its sanctions, such a law serves to protect privacy. Its affirmative usefulness if made clear by the colossal goof committed by a central Watergate figure, former U.S. Attorney John Mitchell. The statue requires the Attorney General or an assistant specially designated by him to approve court applications. Mitchell was so busy seeking the reelection of the President he neglected to personally approve a number of wiretap applications and allowed them to be initialed on his behalf by an executive aide. Some 600 indictments, mostly against major organized crime figures and heroin importers, may be dismissed as a result.

In 1973 the federal government installed only 130 wiretaps, about 15 per cent of the total. The remainder were by local law enforcement agencies in the states that allow wiretapping. It is easy to see that if 600 major indictments can result in a compartively short period of time, even with limited use, the value to law enforcement is immeasurable. But the reaction to Watergate goes further than wiretapping. Several bills, including one by Ervin, seek to limit information that can be kept in police files. If these bills had been law a year ago, police material on the Symbionese Liberation Army would not have been available at the time of the Patty Hearst kidnapping. Criminal groups such as the S.L.A. who commit murder, kidnapping, bank robbery and extortion by cloaking themselves in political rhetoric can hold back investigation until after they have been proven to have committed criminal acts. If a group of heroin importers sends a cassette to the media stating they are a political movement we might have to destroy all files on them.

It would be a shame if we fail to realize that the statute that made Watergate possible is needed at the state level. Kennedy had asked for wiretapping and immunity because it would be helpful in fighting "organized crime and political corruption." His request was prophetic. The political corruption of Watergate may be the worst kind of organized crime ever discovered.

One of Gerald Ford's first acts as President was to ask Paul Delisle to stay on as maitre d' of the Sans Souci Restaurant. As most people know all the important government decisions are made at lunch time at the Sans Souci, and the President felt it was essential that in order to have an orderly transition of government no personnel changes should take place at the restaurant.

A White House aide told me, "We feel that Paul will serve us with the same loyalty that he served previous administrations. The whole world is watching what we do, and I can't think of a better way of instilling confidence than Paul remaining in this key post in government."

Many ambassadors who eat at the Sans Souci expressed delight at the news that the President asked Paul to stay on. "We don't know President Ford," one told me, "but we do know Paul and we can deal with him. I have already cabled my government that Mr. Delisle will keep his maitre d' post, and despite the changeover in government our country can still be assured of a table."

Lawyers and high officials of the media were also pleased that Paul would stay on. One leading pundit said, "In this grave hour of crisis the country needs continuity.

"By asking Paul to keep his position Mr. Ford is saying, 'no matter what happens America will survive.' "

As soon as the announcement was made I went over to see Paul to congratulate him on the appointment.

He read a statement. "I am proud and humble that the White House would ask me to remain in office. I promise to see that mothing but the prices will change at the Sans Souci. Despite the anguish of the past year and the shock that everyone has undergone, we must never forget government officials still have to eat. We have to forget the past and look to the future. The Sans Souci stands ready to face the challenge. I will now take questions."

"Paul, it seems to me your major problem is going to be to take care of President Ford's aides who work at the White House. How will you be able to do this?"

"It will be hard at first because I won't know who they are. Unless they make the reservation in the name of the White House, I may make a mistake and turn them away, but as time goes on I will know where the power is and adjust my reservation list accordingly.

"But can you handle all this new business?"

"I believe I can. Many of the former Nixon aides are no longer in Washington, for one reason or another, so their tables will be filled by the new regime."

"Will you still accept reservations from former Nixon people who have not been sent away?"

"Of course. They may have to wait until the present White House staff is fed, but as long as I am maitre d' anyone who worked in the White House and can still afford it will be welcome. I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else."

"One last question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied "That wasn't my table.' "

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
The Real Gerald Ford

WASHINGTON --Behind the broad shoulders, squaredjaw and ruggedly handsome features, what is President Gerald Ford really like?

We have checked with congressional sleuths, who in preparation for Ford's vice presidential confirmation hearings earlier this year, gave him the most thorough investigation of any man who has ever assumed office. We have talked privately with some of his most intimate friends. We have obtained access to the confidential audit of his tax returns.

From these sources, we have put together a portrait of an intensely human President, basically decent, inherently honest, without guile, who still would like his friends to call him "Jerry."

He uses expletives that would be deleted from White House transcripts, but he never would pretend he didn't. His profanity is good -natured, not vicious characterizations of his enemies.

When Ford first learned about the Nixon "enemies lits," he remarked in disbelief: "If you have so many enemies you have to keep a list, you are in trouble."

Nor have his friends ever heard him, even in his most relaxed moments, let an ethnic slur slip by. He has often voted against the economic interests of the blacks. At first he opposed but later supported civil rights legislation. When the black congressional caucus opposed his confirmation as vice president, Ford was hurt.

"You would think they would know me better," he told a friend sadly.

Another friend recalls watching a TV newscast with Ford when the cameras focused on an impoverished black family being evicted from their home in Mississippi. Ford jumped up in agitation.

"What a shame! What a shame!" he exclaimed. "A country this rich can do better."

The new President has a robust sense of humor and enjoys locker -room jokes. In the backrooms, he has the loose masculine manner of the football star he once was.

He belts an occasional drink and doesn't try to hide the fact. For his thirsty friends, he mixed the drinks himself and never summons an aide to wait on him.

A visitor caught him in shirt sleeves helping to pack the crates when he moved from his congressional office to the vice presidential quarters. The visitor, not recognizing the muscular Ford, mistook him to be the chief of the moving crew.

Afterward, a friend asked him why he didn't let his staff handle the packing. "Oh, shrugged Ford, "this is the kind of thing I can do."

After he was appointed Vice president, we phoned him at his modest Alexandria, Va., home and got a man's voice on the other end. It was Ford still answering his own telephone.

The President instinctively likes people and is concerned about them. He tied up a friend for long hours helping him with vice presidential arrangements. The friend's exasperated wife finally complained that he may as well not bother to come home but stay at the Fords'.

Gerald Ford picked up the phone and apologized to her. "I just couldn't have gotten by without him," said Ford about her husband. She was flustered but mollified.

At a small social gathering, another friend recalls, the men were talking about world affairs and the women were discussing the problems of the handicapped. The compassionate Ford shifted his attention to the women's conversation.

As Washington watchdogs, we have had occasion to check into reports that Ford has misused campaign money. We discovered on the contrary that he has always refused to accept cash contributions. He has insisted upon checks, which can be properly recorded. We never found the slightest evidence that he ever diverted a dime for his own personal use.

The audit of his tax returns confirmed our findings. Once he mistakenly spent $1,167 in political funds for a family trip to their condominium in the Vail, Colo., ski country. The moment he discovered the bookkeeping mistake, he immediately reimbursed the political account.

The Internal Revenue Service also disallowed an $871.44 deduction that Ford had taken for the special clothing he purchased for the 1972 Republican convention. The IRS ruled that the new suits were not "unique or distinctive" in character and, therefore, leveled a $4,355.77 tax deficiency against Ford.

Ford's lawyers assured him that he was entitled to the deduction and could defeat the IRS in tax court. Nevertheless, Ford issisted upon giving the government the benefit of any doubt nad ordered his accountants to write the IRS a check.

Ford's returns show he earned a total income of $224,364.10 for the first three years of the 1970s. He paid $75,111.44, or about a third of his income, in federal taxes. An additional $6,261.42 was paid to Michigan in state taxes.

The FBI investigation of Ford before his confirmation as vice presient was so thorough, he was told, that agents even questioned a high school football player who allegedly had been kneed by Ford in a tough -fought game. The referees threw Ford out of the game over the incident.

As Ford was later told, his former football rival confirmed that Ford had been ejected from the game but confessed that Ford had never actually kneed him.

Ford commented to friends that he was pleased the FBI had been so thorough.

Hearing starts today on farm investigation

JEFFERSON CITY — State Rep. D. R. Osbourn, D-Monroe City, has released details regarding a legislative committee public hearing on an investigative study into certain ailing segments of Missouri's agricultural industry.

Osbourn is chairman of a special committee of the Missouri Legislature authorized to make a thorough and comprehensive investigation into the factors relating to possible inequities in the production and distribution of milk, as well as the production of beef, pork and poultry. Particularly, the committee will look into milk pricing practices, including prices and costs to the producers and consumers of milk and milk products in Missouri.

Osbourn pointed out that Missouri farmers are "literally taking a beating" in the state's agricultural economy and that findings of the investigation will determine the need for remedial legislation, if any, to solve the existing problems.

The public hearing was held in the Senate lounge in the Capitol Building in Jefferson City today at 10 a.m. In announcing the public hearing, Osbourn urged anyone having information pertinent to the investigative study to appear and present testimony for consideration of the committee. He strongly urged farm organizations, dairy farmers, milk processors, hog and beef producers, etc., to attend the hearing.

The committee, Osbourn said, "is hopeful the probe will reveal, particularly, the basic causative factors in the problems in the milk industry." The study was prompted, he said, by the recent controversy over the milk pricing practices in southwest Missouri – "the disparity between the unrealistic price of milk paid to the farmer - producer and the ultimate price paid by the milk consumer."

Also prompting the study is the proposed huge hog complex planned in northeast Missouri and the serious threat of massive corporate farming operations on the overall agricultural economy of the state and the general welfare of the people.

For further information regarding the investigation and the public hearing, Osbourn urged interested parties to contact the committee office in Jefferson City, telephone number 751-3676 or their state senator or state representative.

Unemployment payments decrease for month

JEFFERSON CITY — Unemployment insurance benefit payments in Missouri decreased in July, and fewer weeks of unemployment are compensated under the program financed by payroll taxes paid by employers.

Among counties showing a decrease in payments were Mississippi and Stoddard. Scott and New Madrid counties, however, reported slight increases.

Mississippi County benefit payments decreased from $16,287 in June to $16,149 in July. The county's payments were also lower than the $15,604 paid in July 1973.

In Stoddard County payments fell from $33,237 in June to $31,026 in July. Payments in the county in July 1973 had been $25,267.

Scott County's July payments totaled $27,202, compared with $22,169 in June and $26,029 in July 1973.

New Madrid County payments rose to $11,307 from $10,914 in June, but were well under the $23,041 paid in July 1973.

John F. Meystrik, director of the Division of Employment Security, reported $6,654,635 was paid out statewide in July, compared to $7,243,285 in June. Meystrik said weekly benefits averaged $53.24.

Of the more than $6 million in benefit payments, Meystrik said, $544,730 was paid out in federally funded benefits to unemployment former federal civilian employes and to veterans.

Meystrik said July unemployment insurance claims increased as seasonal layoffs occurred in garment and shoe industries.

Firemen called

Firemen were called at 9:08 p.m. Monday to a fire in an abandoned house at 209 Alabama St.

The fire was started in an old mattress by children playing with matches, according to firemen.

The fire destroyed the mattress but was extinguished before it damaged the old frame house, which is located at the end of a row of abandoned houses on Alabama Street.

The world's largest swimming pool is in Casablanca, Morocco. The Orthlieb Pool is 1,575 feet long and 246 feet wide.

6 treated

Six accident patients were treated and released Monday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Stolen car recovered

An automobile stolen about noon from the parking lot at the Scott County Welfare Department office, 312 E. Center St., was recovered by police about 7 p.m. on an unnamed street south of Linda Drive in the Hunter Acres West subdivision.

Police said the car is owned by Laura Brown of Chaffee, a case worker for the welfare department.

The car was spotted about 7 p.m. by a co-worker of Mrs. Brown, police said.

Three openings at Head Start

The Sikeston Head Start Center on Airport Drive has openings for a teacher, cook and janitor for the school term beginning Aug. 26, according to coordinator Wanda Rofkahr.

The teacher will work a six -hour day, from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, and must have 30 or more hours of credit toward a college degree in early childhood or elementary education, according to Mrs. Rofkahr.

The cook will work five hours each day, from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., and the janitor will work a four -hour day Monday through Friday from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Both should be experienced, Mrs. Rofkahr stated.

Applications will be taken through Friday at the Delta Area Economic Opportunity Corporation Center, 201 S. Kingshighway, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day.

Two arrested

Police today announced two arrests, including Oscar J. Badart, 1906 Ables Road for careless and imprudent driving and Clyde Eugene Parden of Bertrand for tampering with a motor vehicle.

Hayti High registration set

HAYTI --Registration for Hayti High School students will be held Aug. 22 at the school.

Freshmen will register from 9 to 9:30 a.m.; sophomores form 9:30 to 10 a.m.; juniors from 10 to 10:30 a.m. and senior from 10:30 to 11 a.m.

Fees for the coming year will be $3.25 incidental, 50 cents for locks, $2 for home economics; $2 for art; $2 for industrial arts; and $5 for typing.

Trade school students will start classes Aug. 21. The bus will leave from the high school at 11:30 a.m.

School starts Aug. 26.

What's the law?

The case of the quarreling neighbors

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Irwin and Bert argued from different premises and, consequently, never made it as neighbors,. In fact, every time they patched up an argument, it was as good as new.

Irwin's consternation, however, reached a pique when he discovered that he had inadvertently paid one of Bert's tax bills which the authorities had inadvertantly mailed to his instead of Bert's address.

With outstretched palm, Irwin marched up to Bert's front door with hopeful expectation of being repaid. All he received from his neighbor, however, was an uncontrollable belly laugh.

"It's really very funny," quaked Bert, "and too bad for you. Since I never asked you to pay the bill, I have no obligation to reimburse you. But," he assured his neighbor, "don't think I don't appreciate it."

"You're not appreciative," was Irwin's answer. "You're crazy if you think you don't have to pay me back. I'm not going to let you get away with my paying your taxes and neither will the law."

Hurrying off to the nearest courthouse, Irwin sued his neighbor to recover the tax money erroneously paid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Irwin to recover the money inadvertently paid for Bert's benefit?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person pays another's bill without being asked to do so, he's a volunteer. And, concluded the judge, as a volunteer he cannot force the other person to pay him back.

INVESTING IN LAND

One of the n ice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt.

For the typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 25% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long- term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment.

The key to a good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a good, local Realtor comes in. He has initmate knowledge of community needs, and can forecast, far better than the layman, what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Mitchell is Past President of the Sikeston Board of Realtors and is currently serving as Vice- President of the Missouri Association of Realtors.)

Book Review

RULE BRITANNIA by Dphne du Maurier 19547 - $1.50 - Novel

The publication of RULE BRITANNIA, Daphne du Maurier's first novel in five years, brings the total number of her books in print in Avon paperback editions to nearly 5,000,000. RULE BRITANNIA sold 450,000 Doubleday hardcover copies when it first appeared last year, and was a Literary Guild selection.

Set in Cornwall, England, the author's home and the setting for many of her novels, RULE BRITANNIA takes place in the not-too-distant future. England drops out of the Common Market and joins with the United States to form the USUK and, in the ensuing confusion, American Marines land at the smallfishing village of Poldrea to protect, they claim, the Cornish coast from possible retaliatory invasion. But when the military begins to restrict the movements of the villagers with road blocks and auto passes, and when the water and power are cut off, a group of angry townspeople become convinced that the Americans themselves are the invaders. Madam —"Mad" - an eccentric, lively, eighty year old retired actress, heads the opposition, backed by her six adopted orphan boys, her motherless grandaughter Emma, and an enraged citizenry. Together with these picturesque allies and a Welsh hermit-squatter living on her land, Mad plays hilarious pranks and then plots more serious sabotage which effectively aid in breaking England's latest political alliance.

Body needs more salt in hot weather

This column is a service from cooperative extension nutritionists at Lincoln University and the University of Missouri. Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Norsdstrom, Nutrition Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Q. Is it a good idea to eat extra meat and other - high - protein foods during hot weather?

A. No, because the body requires about the same amounts of protein, minerals and vitamins in hot or cold weather. Heavy sweating may increase the need for sodium which can easily be furnished by eating a little more table salt. Eating additional amounts of meat and other high- protein foods may actually make one feel hotter, since more heat is given off by the body after a meal rich in protein than after meals composed primarily of carbohydrates or fats. This heat is useful only for warming the body and thus can add to one's discomfort in hot weather.

It is interesting that vegetarians have been found to have a lower basal metabolic rate (BMR) than meat eaters, perhaps because their diets tend to be lower in protein. Since BMR refers to energy comsumption and heat release during a state of rest, vegetarians can be said to operate at a cooler basic temperature than meat eaters. Tests have shown that this difference may amount to 10 per cent fewer calories for established vegetarians.

The important point that should be emphasized is that a nutritious, balanced die is required whether the day's temperature is cold or hot. The Four Food Groups are good guidelines for achieving a balanced diet:

Milk group — Each adult should have the equivalent of two glasses or more a day while four glasses per day are recommended for adolescents and teenagers.

Meat group — (includes fish, poultry, cheese, beans, peas and nuts) — Two servings are needed every day.

Vegetable and fruit group — Four or more servings are recommended each day. These should include at least one serving of citrus fruits, tomatoes or raw cabbage.

Bread and cereal group — Four servings or more from this group each day are suggested. The use of foods containing enriched flour and whole grains are strongly recommended.

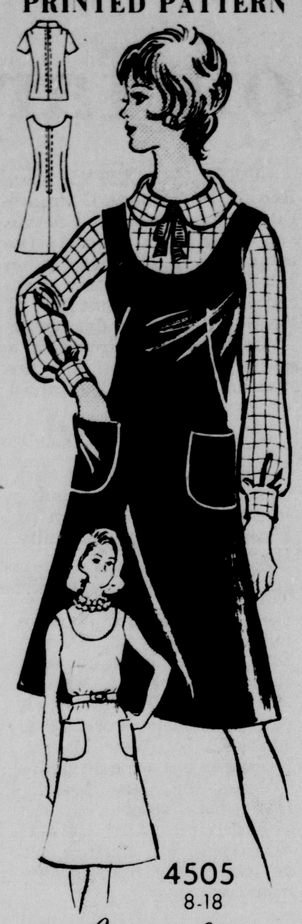

Q. Are there special diet needs for someone who does hard physical work in hot weather?

A. No, except that adequate salt and water must be consumed to replace losses from perspiration. Otherwise, the same guidelines for a balanced diet given for the preceeding question should be followed. We should expect, of course, that anyone who exercises or works strenuously burns up a lot of energy. A hard-working man may have to eat twice as much (or more) food than someone who leads a less active life to supply his greater energy needs.

This does not mean that meat or other protein source needs to be increased since exercise has not been shown to affect protein requirement to any great degree. Salt losses may be offset by following the same idea used by some athletes. A tablespoon of salt is added to each gallon of drinking water, which should be drunk in small amounts at frequent intervals throughout the day.

Ann Landers

Driver should not put child on lap

Dear Ann landers: I saw it again today and I promised myself I would not close my eyes tonight until I wrote this letter.

What did I see? A man driving down the highway with a small child on his lap. May I address my remarks to all fathers, uncles or friends who think they are giving the kid a big thrill by "letting him drive." Here is my message:

Dear Manic: The next time you inch by a couple of mangled pieces of steel that once were automobiles, just imagine what would have happened to that child on your lap if you two had been in one of those cars. Sign me --I Love Children

Dear Friend: Thank you for a brief but mighty message. And now I'd like to tell my readers that there are some new, cleverly --designed car seats for young children who are too small for safety belts. Please check with your auto supply dealer today, folks. It could mean the difference between life and death to some precious child.

Dear Ann Landers: A girl recently wrote that her fiance had decided to "clear the air and tell all." He confessed he had slept with about 40 girls before they met. She was shocked and dismayed by his confession and said, "I don't know if I should marry this-man. Will I be forever haunted by those 40 faceless women?"

You told the young woman to accept the fact that her fiance was an immature Casanova, trying to prove himself --and to forget it. You then suggested that she seek counseling if necessary to get it out of her system.

I'm wondering, Ann, whether you would have given the same advice to a young man who wrote to say his bride -to -be had confessed to sleeping with about 40 men before they met? Or would you have said, "Drop that cheap little slut. She will be nothing but trouble."

For too long women have been expected to be virgin brides, but men, well --"boys will be boys," It's time we acknowledged the fact that male promiscuity is just as disgusting and cheapening as female promiscuity and I wish you had said so.

I am not suggesting women be allowed the same sexual freedom that men have traditionally enjoyed in our phony puritanical society, but I do believe that women should stand up and voice their disgust with men who behave like alley cats or dogs on the street. I am for a Single standard and it had better be a high one or there will be no standards at all --for anyone. Are you ready to eat your words, Ann Landers? --Plain Spoken

Dear P.S.: Gulp, gulp.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been engaged to Jim for nearly a year. He received an invitation to a wedding and the reception following the ceremony. The invitation was addressed to him only. I received no invitation. The groom is a very close friend of Jim's and knows we are engaged.

Should Jim go alone, not go at all, or call his friend and ask if he can bring me? Other couples were invited. -- Feelings Hurt

Dear Hurt: Considering some of the experiences I've had with the U.S. mails, I would not be at all surprised if your invitation was stuck in a chute somewhere.

Jim should phone his friend and let him know you received no invitation and it must have gone astray. If by chance you were not invited, it's up to Jim to decide what he wants to do. Don't attempt to influence him one way or the other.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism --Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self -addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Women's intercollegiate sports rules changing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In the space of just the past couple of weeks, the face of women's intercollegiate sports in Pennsylvania has changed completely.

Recruiting, athletic scholarships, summer sports camps and even televised games are either realities or being planned.

The first public word came Friday, when it was learned Penn State had approved as many as 50 athletic scholarships for women starting this fall. Not counting its 100 football grants, Penn state awards about 100 athletic scholarships to men.

While Penn State was deciding about granting scholarships to women, the University of Pittsburgh was recruiting.

And Pitt has been so successful, says basketball coach Sandra Bullman, that "we're going to win a national championship with these girls."

But from the defending national champions, Immaculata College of Malvern, Pa., comes a challenge.

"Tell Pitt to add us to their schedule," said Coach Cathy Rush.

Her teams have complied a 74-4 record the past four seasons.

Her husband Ed, an official in the National Basketball Association for seven years until he switched to the rival American Basketball Bassociation this past season, said Immaculata's following is growing by leaps and bounds.

Rush said next year's team has been scheduled into Madison Square Garden and will play twice in Philadelphia's basketball shrine, the Palestra. And there is more.

"We are very, very close to signing a television contract," Rush said. "The interest is definitely there, and womens basketball will definitely be a major spectator sport in the future."

The rush to financial aid for women athletes and the upgrading of long- neglected women's sports programs around the nation has been prompted by a set of guidelines being drafted by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It is believed they will call at least for equal opportunities for women athletes in colleges and universities receiving federal funds.

Ignoring the guidelines could mean loss of the federal money.

Penn State, with 10 years of intercollegiate women's athletics behind it, doesn't have as far to go as many schools.

Its assistant athletic director, Della Durant, is a woman.

Its women have an entire building for their program, and they receive an increasingly large share of the athletic budget. The decision to start awarding scholarships, for example, probably adds 50 per cent to this year's estimated intercollegiate expenditures of $40,000 for women.

In contrast, the men's teams, not counting football, spent about $280,000 this year.

"But that's deceptive," said retiring basketball coach Maryann Demitrovitz. "We get all the support, in terms of money, equipment, advice and encouragement, that we need."

Erma Bombeck column begins

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A new series, "At Wit's End," by Erma Bombeck, started Monday in The Daily Standard. The following short article is about the author of this funny column.)

One day a voice came out of the utility room. It belonged to a housewife from Centerville, Ohio, who found herself with three unplanned children, an educator husband and a dog that giggled when she came out of the shower.

Erma Bombeck, who used to talk to her self a lot, is the authoress of the thrice-weekly humor column, "At Wit's End". It appears in approximately 400 newspapers with a total circulation in excess of 31 million.

Erma began her career as a copy girl on the staff of the Dayton Journal Herald. She worked as a club reporter for a year and was assigned to the women's department for five years.

When the last of her children was in a playpen, she returned to writing via the Kettering- Oakwood Times and a year later was on the editorial pages of the Journal Herald. Within three weeks, editor Glenn Thompson had brought the column to the attention of a syndicate.

A graduate of the University of Daytona, Erma has just authored her third book for Doubleday and conducts a regular column for Good Housekeeping, "Up The Wall". She has also contributed to McCall's and Reader's Digest.

She is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, which awarded her the Headliner Award in 1969, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity.

Erma Bombeck

Her book, "Just Wait Till You Have Children of Your Own", was awarded the Obianna Award for the best book in humor in 1972. In 1973, she received the coverted Mark Twain Award, which is presented to the top humorist in the nation.

Erma lives in Paradise Valley, Ariz., with her two sons, her educator husband and her dog. ("I have to keep him. He knows too much.")

The authoress has appeared often on television and does a limited number of lectures each year.

Little League football set

The Sikeston Jaycees announce the formation of the Sikeston Jaycee Football Little League. Sponsored by the Bank of Sikeston, The Daily Sikeston Standard, National Lock, and the Sikeston Jaycee's, the new league brings the basics of tackle football to all sixth and seventh grade Sikeston boys, who weigh less than 156 lbs.

The Sikeston Jaycee Little League football is comprised of four teams that play a total of six Saturday afternoon games this fall in Round Robin competition at the V.F.W. Park. The League is limited by the equipment it provides, to 100 boys, or 25 per team, per game.

Of paramount significance in the new league is the fact that every boy who dresses out for a game will play at least one quarter of the game.

All equipment, from helmets to knee pads, will be furnished to the boys. It's all brand new and of highest quality.

The teams are limited to 15 basic offensive plays and 2 basic defenses, and these plays are all specially designed by Sikeston High School football coach Terry Smith and his staff, especially for this new league.

Every game will be run by two uniformed referees, and a doctor will also be in attendance. Practice sessions will be held at the four elementary school playgrounds, and the first league game will be Sept. 21.

There will be no tryouts for the league. All a boy has to do to qualify is to bring one parent or guardian to registration on August 17, at the Sikeston High School cafeteria. The hours of registration are 9-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Rules and bylaws of the league will be given out at registration to each boy, and the teams will be determined by a random drawing soon after registration day.

Each boy must purchase insurance at registration that will cost $4.50 to $5.50 per boy.

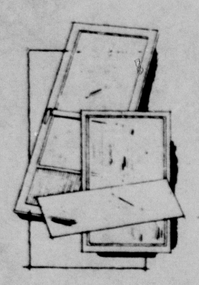

Any adult who desires to be a coach in this new league should contact Charles Blumenburg at 471-5451 or Rob Mitchell at 471-0538 as soon as possible.

Again, to be eligible, the following requirements must be met by each boy:

1. Sixth or seventh grade in the Sikeston Public School System.
2. Not weigh more than 155 lbs.
3. Purchase the insurance required by the league.
4. A desire to learn good basic fundaments of tackle football.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia's entry in the North American Hockey League will be known as the Philadelphia Firebirds, it was announced Monday.

The team will play a 74-game schedule, opening at home Oct. 18.

WARSAW (AP) — Balazs Taroczy of Hungary won the European Amateur Tennis Championship Monday in Wroclaw, Southern Poland.

He beat the favored Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-2, 10-8, 2-6, 4-6, 6-4.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers announced Monday that they had returned veteran relief pitcher Dick Selma to Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League.

Selma was obtained from that club two weeks ago, but had been unimpressive with the Brewers in two appearances.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Enzo Hernandez of the San Diego Padres has been named the latest National League Player of the Week award winner.

Charles S. Feeney, league president, announced the honor today. The Padres' shortstop had a .450 batting average last week with nine hits in five games from Aug. 5 through Aug. 11.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Steve Corbett, the New England Patriots' top National Football League draft choice, should be completely recovered in two or three weeks after surgery at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, his physician says.

Dr. Francis Rocket said some scar tissue was removed from Corbett's shoulder during the four-hour operation.

Veterans begin 'cooling off'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It was a long drawn-out strike," said Buffalo guard Reggie McKenzie, "and our side lost."

That was one reaction Monday as National Football League players drifted into training camps across the country under provisions of a 14-day cooling off period decided on by the players association.

Everyone is supposed to report to camp by Wednesday, negotiations with the owners are to resume Thursday and if an agreement isn't reached in two weeks, everyone is supposed to walk out again.

McKenzie wasn't the only one unhappy with the plan which the players say was suggested by chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr.

"If I said I was happy about the way we're going in, I'd be lying," said Washington defensive tackle Diron Talbert.

Offensive tackle Dick Himes Green Bay added, "This could be the worst thing that could happen at a time like this. Nothing's settled. This could be ruinous to team unity. We're going in without a contract signed and we're no better off than we were a year ago.'

Meanwhile, rookies and free agents continued to display their talents in three Monday night games. The Pittsburgh Steelers bombed the Chicago Bears 50-21, the Cleveland Browns edged the San Francisco 49ers 21-20 and the Buffalo Bills beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-21.

Some veterans were pleased with the plan to return to action. But the Minnesota Vikings were the most reluctant warriors in the league. About 33 decided to ignore the players association plan and remain on strike for at least another week.

Some coaches were skeptical or downright hostile to the plan and others delighted to get their best players back.

"I'm very unexcited about it. I don't think Mr. Usery knows much about football," said San Diego Coach Tommy Prothro.

"I think they should come in with the idea of staying in or they shouldn't come in at all," commented Kansas City head man Hank Stram. "I don't like the indecisiveness of the matter. It's not good for anybody concerned."

In Houston there was a difference of opinion between Coach Sid Gillman and owner Bud Adams.

"I'm not about to take a veteran back under those conditions," declared Gillman after hearing of the cooling off period. "All it would do is disrupt our camp. To come in and then maybe walk out two weeks later is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of."

But Adams declined to bar players from the Oilers' camp.

In Monday night's action, Joe Gilliam, in relief of starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw, threw for three touchdowns and ran for a fourth. Chicago gained just five yards on offense in the entire first half. A crowd of 42,325 was on hand in Pittsburgh.

Will Cureton hooked up with Steve Holden on an 80-yard touchdown play in the final seconds and Chris Gartner booted the extra point to give Cleveland the victory before only 24,008 fans in Cleveland. More than 65,000 fans attended last year.

Rookie Gary Marangi threw two touchdown passes and veteran Joe Ferguson threw one in Buffalo's victory. The game was played before 39,248 fans in Kansas City.

Seabaugh remains Tiger

Quarterback Bill Seabaugh, who led the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers to two SEMO conference championships his junior and senior years has signed a letter -of -intent to attend the University of Missouri according to Tiger coach Al Onofrie.

Onofrio plans to use Seabaugh as a slotback, defensive back, and quarterback. Bill is 6 -2 and weighs 180 pounds. He also was a fine student at Cape Central High School and was selected to the Daily Standard all -academic basketball for the past two seasons.

The Tigers also announced the signing of Thomas McBride a fullback from Springfield, Ill. McBride also plays defensive end and weighs 220 pounds and is 6-2. He is a 9.8 sprinter and is the cousin of Ron McBride, former fullback of the Tigers and Bake McBride of the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals.

Sikeston dominates tournament

Bob Fields and Ken Anderson of Sikeston defeated Tom Daughtee and Terry Schott of Charleston Saturday night 6- 4, 6 -0, and 6 -4 to win the men's doubles finals. Earlier, Judy Bowman of Sikeston and Chris Groves of Cape Girardeau beat Bonnie Conn and Jan Matthews of Sikeston 6 -0, 6 -1, and 6 -1 to take the women's championship.

Ronnie Zilafro of East Prairie won the men's singles and Bonnie Conn won the women's singles finals.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — New York Yankee greats Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford were inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame, along with former umpire Jocko Conlan, Negro League star "Cool Papa" Bell, Sam Thompson and "Sunny Jim" Bottomley. Thompson and Bottomley were honored posthumously.

Godby card star

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals continue to lead baseball's snug National League East by about the length of Danny Godby's bat.

And the crack of the longtime minor league outfielder's tool in trade may have accounted Monday night for more than a 6-5 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"Little things are what win ball games and pennants," observed Cards captain Joe Torre after Godby singled and scored in the 13th to end a marathon of 4 hours and 3 minutes.

But more impressed and pleased still was Manager Red Schoendienst, who noted, "Godby won the ball game with his baserunning."

Striding to the plate for a first time in the majors, he drilled a Laxton fast ball up the middle leading off.

Jack Heidemann laid down a sacrifice to move Godby to second, then came the move that both Schoendienst and Torre praised.

Godby, instead of holding, broke fast and was half way to third when Padres shortstop Enzo Hernandez fielded Lou Brock's slow infield hit.

The advance prompted the Padres to walk Ted Sizemore a fifth time, and Bake McBride followed with a long sacrifice fly to center field.

"When he saw the ball come off the bat he realized he could make it," said Torre, who called Godby's dash to third instinctive.

"I had a pretty good jump," Godby explained. "If the ball had been hit hard, though, I was going to stay on second."

The auspicious debut was particularly heartening to Godby, whose run kept the Cardinals 1½ games ahead of the Philadelphia Phillies in the East Division.

"I'd been kicking around the minors so long I wondered if I'd ever get up here," he conceded. "I don't think anyone can realize how good that hit felt."

The Cards' winner in relief was left-hander Al Hrabosky, 61, who pitched 4 1-3 hitless innings to outdistance the Padres' Laxton and starter Bill Greif.

"We got outstanding pitching," remarked San Diego Manager John McNamara. "It's just a shame we had to waste it on a night when we couldn't score more runs."

Ryan sets strikeout mark

ANAHEIM (AP) — On Sept. 15, 1969, Nolan Ryan, a New York Mets pitcher, watched Steve Carlton, then of the St. Louis Cardinals, establish a major league record by striking out 19 New York Mets.

On April 22, 1970, Ryan saw Tom Seaver of the Mets equal Carlton's record against the San Diego Padres.

On Monday night at Anaheim Stadium, Ryan watched with something resembling bemusement as he etched his name into baseball's record book with a 19- strikeout performance.

"I guess I'm the only guy in the world to have seen all three of them," Ryan drawled in his Texas twang after his performance defeated the Boston Red Sox 4-2.

"I've always felt that if all the conditions were right and everything fell into place that I might have a chance at the record," he observed matter - of- factly as he gazed into the sea of inquiring reporters after the game.

"I really wasn't thinking much about the record until I noticed something on the scoreboard in the seventh or eighth inning," he said.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit thumped Kansas City 5-1, Oakland edged the New York Yankees 3-2, and Milwaukee beat Texas 5-1.

Ryan threw 170 pitches - 115 of them for strikes - as he won his 15th game of the year. He erased the unhappy memory of his last start when he held the Chicago White Sox hitless for 8 1-3 innings before blowing the third no-hitter of his strikeout - studded career and eventually lost the game 2-1.

Sixteen of the strikeouts were swinging.

Although he only tied the major league single- game strikeout record, Ryan did succeed in erasing the hallowed name of Bob Feller from the American League record book. Feller had the old AL mark of 18 strikeouts in a nine- inning game.

Ryan also tied Luis Tiant's major league standard of 32 strikeouts in consecutive games.

Ryan said he still considers his two no-hitters of last season a greater achievement than his 19 strikeouts of Monday night.

Tigers 5, Royals 1

Rookie Ron Leflore's two- run homer keyed a three- run third inning against Nelson Briles and sparked Detroit over Kansas City.

Michkey Lolich, 13-14, scattered five hits for Detroit as the Tigers snapped Kansas City's winning streak at three games.

A's 3, Yankees 2

Jim "Catfish" Hunter notched his 17th victory of the season with a five- hitter, pitching Oakland over New York.

The A's won the game on a pair of unearned runs in the eighth inning scored on an error by Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles.

Brewers 5, Rangers 1

George Scott's two- run single and Darrell Porter's two- run double helped Milwaukee beat Texas. Jim Colborn, 7-10, and Tom Murphy combined to stop Texas on five hits.

National League scores: Philadelphia 4, San Francisco 1; New York 3, Los Angeles 1; Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 4; St. Louis 6, San Diego 5, 13 innings.

Hanlon posts Ace

DELTA --John L. Hanlon of Delta became eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole -in -one at the Sikeston Country Club. Hanlon's ace qualified him for the annual Rusty Nail Hole -In -One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

Baker fourth

Windy Baker, 13 -year old free style swimmer, was the only member of the Sikeston swim team to place in the Cape Girardeau All -American City trophy meet recently.

Baker placed fourth in her division as Sikeston competed against teams from Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee and Missouri.

Dr. Jean R. Dupont, coach of the Sikeston team, related that the two teams that dominated the meet had facilities for year round swimming and noted his backing for the discussed Sikeston Public School --city of Sikeston indoor pool.

Sikeston will host an invitational meet at the Country club pool later this month or early Sept.

To the Editor:

One may need to express patriotic fervor by insulting the USSR. However, I feel that the caption "Soviet Union gets first sex manuel" printed next to a photo of Rudy the Gorilla in prostate position, (7-31-74) is rather provocative.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

On behalf of the Sikeston Area Vocational School and the Building Trades Class, I want to thank you for having such a cooperative news staff. The articles and picture were outstanding. I also want to thank you for the advertisements that were well done and the rush job on printing the programs.

It is efforts and interest like this that help make school projects a success. The community needs more people like you are willing to go that extra mile to make a school project a success.

Sincerely,
Wayne Land, Instructor

"DISQUALIFY"
William ("Milkfund") Hungate

Rep. Hungate did not return his "milkfund" "take" until he was "exposed" of his crime. Now, Hungate sits in "judgement" and jokes about impeachment. How "empty" can a man get?? How fatuous can "justice" be??????

Rep. William (Milkfund) Hungate "pocketed" his milkfund "bribe" then allowed his (158) labor "puppets" to beat President Nixon to collapse, for the same greedy bribery Hungate is "guilty" of himself??? How can you vote for such ambiguity? Impeachment of a President is more serious than lynching a man, because, labor "Beholden" (Hungate) Democrats will change our government, yet, Hungate, like a "yo-yo" on Meany's string, jokes about it, he, thinks impeachment is farcical. Hungate "favors" labor legislation, instead of what is good for America as a "whole".

Mr. J. Harris

DO YOU KNOW YOUR CONGRESSMAN?
July 31? 1974

Dear Editor:

Sources in Washington have reported the abuse of federal funds, and the U.P.I. has verified the story, that H.E.W. funds are being used for induced abortions. Sixteen states are now using Title XIX funds (Medicaid) for abortions. In other words, those of us who do not believe in abortion are paying for them anyway, through our federal taxes.

On June 27, 1974 an amendment to stop the use of federal funds for abortion was defeated by a vote of 2 to 1: 247 Representatives voted "no" and 123 voted "yes". Our own Congressman from the 10th District, Bill Burlison, voted for the continuation of the federal funding.

In a letter from Mr. Burlison dated July 17, 1974, he states, "As you have been previously advised, and as indicated in the enclosed, my position has not been finally determined on the difficult overall issue of abortion."

We ask Mr. Burlison, "How long does it take a man to decide if killing 1½ million unborn babies a year is right or wrong?"

Will we continue to elect men for high office who will not work toward stopping the inhumane practice of abortion? Our legislators had better believe WE WILL NOT!! We will weed them out, one by one, until we have men and women in Washington who work for the well being of all mankind.

Yours truly
Stella Hulshof
Portageville, Mo.

Dear Editor:

You may have a picture to accompany the enclosed editorial regarding John A. Wright which was written by Joe Brown, Stoddard County Historical Society Publicity Chairman. Mr. Wright died July 2, 1974.

This article is being mailed to all daily papers in the area.

Harold Lemar, Treasurer
Stoddard County Historical Society

Imaginative educator --able teacher --efficient administrator --active Free Mason -- respected member of the Stoddard County Historical Society --these and other equally important and honorable words have been righly used to describe the life and work of John A. Wright.

What some may have over-looked are the simple, humane qualities of the man.

Many, especially some of his former pupils, might be inclined to remember John A. as a stern man. They recall that he whipped kids --that he shook them up --that he was a demanding taskmaster. To many a student called into the office he must have looked as fierce as the very devil himself, and they all knew he kept in his desk drawer, a big, long shoe sole. It is told all over Stoddard County that it came off one of Joe Brown's old shoes. Joe wore size 14EEE. That story surely is not so, because I saw Joe, alive and kicking, only a few days ago on the streets of Bloomfield. Had it been one of Joe's shoe soles, I'm sure he would have been done in long ago by one of John's, "victims" just for supplying the deadly weapon.

Beneath this rock-like exterior there was a warm, witty, story-telling, philosophical person. The truth is John A. was really one of the kindest of men! This writer has heard several of John A's former supposed "victims" relate how, upon being called into the office and after a long heart-to-heart talk, John A., dragging out the old shoe sole, would say, "All right, holler real loud now", and beat the devil out of the desk!

John A. loved the truth! He hated a lie because at a fairly early age he found out, the hard way, that lying didn't pay.

A student caught lying got the shoe sole!

John A loved a diligent student --not necessarily the brilliant one, but the one who really tried. He hated the slothful, dilatory pupil, because John almost missed an education himself and only at the last moment, so to speak, was prodded into getting one and came to realize its value.

Slackers often got the shoe sole!

John A. loved history, though he is probably best remembered in the field of mathematics. During his retirement years, though disabled, he restored several family heirlooms and other "antiques" and, despite his handicap, supported the work and aims of the Historical Society --contributing among other things a discussion of the history of the development of the educational system in Stoddard County, a subject on which he was the undisputed authority.

Here was a great man who might have been greater; though justly proud of his achievements after so slow and late a start, he never reached his potential --and he knew it! For him, the beginning was too late --the preparation too meager.

If he seemed impatient --if he seemed fierce --if he appeared to be over-bearing -- it wasn't because that was his nature. Rather it was because he wanted these later generations to get the early start he didn't get-- to have the preparation he didn't have --that they might come nearer realizing their full capabilities. John A. was doing his job in that inimitable way of his --never beating around the bush, always meeting the challenge head on -- all for the betterment of the rest of us.

John Athol Wright, a man whose life seemed full of paradox, wasn't, as some may have thought, mad at the world; rather, he dearly loved the world.

Strikes

I heartily endorse your editorial, "Eight Who Voted Against Taxpayers." The employer has only one vote, but all of his employes can help perpetuate a politician in office to the harm of the people. No striker should be entitled to food stamps or any remuneration he has not earned.

Any striker comes out a loser, because if he is off his job even a short time, the increase he gets will never make up for the loss in pay he sustained while on strike, and his increase in pay is passed on to increases on consumer products.

I believe that all strikes affecting national welfare in any way should be forbidden by law. Any local strike should not be permitted to spread to other towns and states, and wildcat strikers should be penalized by heavy fines for their unions.

There was a need for unions when they first started but they have outlived their usefullness. We should now have compulsory abritration to settle differences.

When reading the July 27, 1974 Daily Standard, it was with utter disgust that I read the joke on page 2 in column 8 concerning the elephant with a Beatle haircut. I feel that you owe an apology to the readers for having printed such trash. If you have nothing better to print, then I must find something better to read.

18-year-old rights and consumer laws will become effective today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Several New laws designed to protect the consumer and a bill extending full majority rights to 18-year-olds take effect today.

Beginning today, persons aged 18 or over can make loans, grant loans, sue and be sued, enter into contracts, serve on juries and do just about everything that adults can except buy and possess alcoholic beverages.

Over 100 new laws, approved in the 1974 legislative session, go into effect today.

Some, such as a new law regulating abortions, already are in effect because of emergency clauses. Others, such as repeal of the personal property tax on household goods, won't take effect until 1975.

Some others, such as increased aid to junior colleges and aid to dependent children, were vetoed and will be considered in a 10-day veto session beginning Sept. 4.

Also going into effect in June, because of an emergency clause, was a bill saying that a sales tax does not have to be paid on finance charges. The bill also exempts from the sales tax all sales made to private institutions of higher education.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed 18 bills. During the 1974 session, 138 bills were passed. Bond also vetoed 6.2 million from nearly $1 billion in state funds to be spent in the current fiscal year. Federal and other sources made up the rest of the state's $2 billion budget.

The law giving full adult rights to 18-year-olds has been threatened with suits from people who do not want 18-year-olds to serve on juries and who question whether fathers will now be required to provide child support for children over 18. Many 18-year-olds are still in high school.

In other states where laws were passed lowering the age for adult privileges, courts have held that child support can continue beyond the age of 18 if child support already has been granted.

Legislators say judges can still exercise discretion in awarding child support.

One law in a strong consumer-interest package repeals the holder-in-due course doctrine whereby a contract for a health spa, for example, was sold to a bank and the consumer had to continue making payments to the bank after the health spa went out of business.

Under the new law, a consumer has 90 days in which to cancel the contract and the financial institution would be responsible for making good on the contract.

The mechanics lien law also was revised so that contractors must give a customer notice that he or she has a right to request a lien waiver to protect themselves against the possibilities the contractor will fail to pay for labor and supplies.

In the past, a contractor could pave a driveway, for example, and the consumer would be billed for the cement without knowing beforehand that he would be liable for payment.

Another new law will outlaw pyramid sales schemes whereby a person is inducted to invest money, part of which the original investors keep.

It now will be illegal for a store to deny a credit card to a woman.

Pay increases were approved for numerous county officials, highway patrolmen and members of the state Public Service Commission. Eight pay raise bills for elected officials in St. Louis and their employes, and pay increases for judges, were vetoed.

A revision of the workmen's compensation laws also goes into effect. The law raises the maximum weekly compensation from $70 to $95 a person.

A sweeping plan to give aid to public hospitals and to set up a program to improve maternal health care goes into effect, but it has not been funded.

Hospitals could qualify for state aid up to one-tenth of the local hospital taxing effort.

Resorts anywhere in the state now can get licenses to sell liquor by the drink. The privilege had been restricted to resorts on the Lake of the Ozarks and Table Rock Lake. The new law is not designed to interfere with local option licensing of smaller establishments.

A resort is defined as an establishment with 40 rooms with a restaurant getting at least 60 per cent of its income from food services; or a restaurant, without lodging, which has produced gross food sales of $100,000 annually in the previous two years.

A new law also allows excursion boats on the Mississippi River to sell liquor by the drink.

—Increase penalties for income and sales tax evasion to a maximum $10,000 fine and up to five years in prison.

—Provide that health insurance policies automatically afford coverage for newborns.

—Allow Missouri to participate in a multistate tax compact so joint audits can be performed by 21 states on taxes of large, multistate corporations.

—Allow cities and counties to set up port authorities.

—Require proof that taxes have been paid on each vehicle before it can be registered.

—Make it a misdemeanor for any employer who promises in writing to make payments to an employe retirement plan and then fails to do so.

—Repeal some state laws setting specific standards for soft drink containers and provide that regulations for such containers be drafted by the state Division of Health.

—Provide stiffer penalties, up to a $50,000 fine, and give the attorney general broader investigative powers under the antitrust law.

—Regulate use of pesticides in compliance with a federal law.

—Regulate creation of new bank holding companies. Experts on the law say, however, it will not effectively curb the growth of holding companies.

No results changed after vote canvass

NEW MADRID — A canvass Monday of the New Madrid County Democratic and Republican primary election returns failed to change unofficial results announced earlier, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, who said some minor errors had been made in posting votes on the precinct tally sheets.

In Anderson one precinct at Gideon, O. D. "Ode" Henning, county treasurer candidate, received 72 votes and not 92 as first reported, which reduced his total votes to 1,698 or 271 votes over H. H. "Bud" Townsend who pilled 1,427.

In the same precinct Thomas F. Eagleton, candidate for U. S. Senator, received 109 votes rather than 119. In Anderson precinct two at Gideon, Linus E. Young, inactive candidate on the ballot for recorder of deeds, polled 48 votes, or 10 more than first reported.

W. A. "Dub" Scobey, candidate for county collector received 54 votes or five less than first reported in Como precinct three at Risco. Shirley LaPlant, county treasurer candidate, received one vote and not two as reported in Lewis precinct three at Howardville.

There was a tie for Republican committeman in LaFont township when Harry Lewis received one write-in vote in precinct one at Marston and John Klipfel received one write- in vote in precinct three at Conran.

ADC is biggest share of family service funds

NEW MADRID — Funds totaling $222,000.68 were paid out in July by the New Madrid County Welfare Department, with the greatest part of that amount going to aid for dependent children, according to figures released by Mrs. Laverne Hadder, office director.

A total of 907 county families with 2,245 children received $112,013 for aid to dependent children or an average of $123.50 per family check.

State supplemental payments of $21,118 were received by 792 persons, who also received federal supplemental security income. State supplemental payments only in the amount of $6,645 were paid to 172 persons.

A total of 752 persons were eligible for Medicaid benefits from the state. These persons are on the supplemental security income rolls but do not receive a cash grant.

General relief funds totaling $14,022 were paid to 212 families consisting of 223 persons for an average check of $62.88 per person.

Medical assistance was given to 56 persons who did not receive a cash check but are eligible for Medicaid benefits.

Supplemental aid to the blind in the amount of $707 was paid to seven persons.

Nursing care payments in the amount of $5,143 were received by 30 persons. A total of $60,767.88 was expended for hospital and nursing home programs.

Services were given to 83 children under child welfare supervision. The New Madrid County Court provided $792.40 and a matching amount was received from state boarding funds for room and board, clothing, medicine, dental care and incidentals for the children.

Food stamp coupons valued at $210,050, of which $120,807 were bonus coupons, were received by 1,817 households consisting of 6,216 persons during May.

Escapees include man from Morley

LEWISBURG , Pa. (AP) -- State police continued their search today in the thick woods of Bald Eagle State Forest for four inmates who escaped from Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary on Saturday morning.

Police said they did not know whether the four were armed but termed them "dangerous" The escapees included a former Green Beret serving a 45 -year term for skyjacking.

It is believed the men are hiding in the dense and mountainoius woodlands of the state park located some 20 miles from the prison in southwestern Union County.

State and local police were joined by the FBI Saturday after the men made their way to freedom by commandeering a garbage truck inside the prison and driving away under a hail of gunfire from the guard towers, crashing through two locked, chain -link gates.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 13, the 225th day of 1974. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1521, the Spanish conqueror, Hernando Cortez, captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

On this date:

In 1688, King William's War began when Indians attacked North Yarmouth, Maine.

In 1848, the American flag was first raised in Los Angeles.

In 1898, during the Spanish-American War, Spain surrendered the Philippine city of Manila to the United States.

In 1930, a new aviation speed record was established when Capt. Fank Hawks flew from Los Angeles to New York in 12 hours, 25 minutes.

In 1937, the Japanese attacked Shanghai, China.

In 1961, East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin by closing the Brandenburg Gate.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Senate voted against further American aid to Indonesia until the Indonesian dispute with neighboring Malaysia was settled.

Five years ago: President Nixon bestowed the nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom, upon Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins after their historic moon landing.

One year ago: President Nixon signed a $23-billion highway bill, permitting, for the first time, the use of funds of the Federal Highway Trust Fund for mass transit.

Today's birthdays: Cuba's Fidel Castro is 49 years old. Movie director Alfred Hitchcock is 75.

Thought for today: Anger is momentary madness. So control your passion or it will control you — Horace, Roman poet and satirist, 65-8 B-C.

EMPLOYEE GARDENS – BEFORE . . . AND AFTER

The picture above shows a strip of farm land in Pennsylvania which Rodale Press, the magazine publisher, decided to offer to those of its employees without garden space of their own. The company paid to plow the land, and divide it into 25 plots. The rest was up to the employees — to do with as they wished. RCA, near Princeton, New Jersey, provided similar facilities to its employees.

Pictured above is the same piece of ground photographed from the same angle several months later, and the experiment was considered a huge success. Other companies can do the same without much cost or effort — and it's a benefit the employees really appreciate. All it takes is a piece of spare ground, and a responsible leader with the enthusiasm to supervise the project.

The most famous community garden system in the world is undoubtedly that practiced in Great Britain, where tens of thousands of people rent garden plots from local authorities, corporations and nationalized industries in order to grow bountiful harvests of fresh vegetables and beautiful flowers.

In America it is estimated that 30,000,000 more people would garden if they had the land, and recent surveys have shown that there is a tremendous interest among these people in community gardens.

Community gardens are also popular in Holland, Germany, Denmark and France. Many not only have an area for growing vegetables but they include lawns and flower beds, plus a small summerhouse for relaxing.

Burial will follow in East Prairie Memorial Park Cemetery.

Madrid earns third star for betterment

NEW MADRID --The third star in the Missouri Community Betterment five -star program was received today by the city in the category of utilities, according to Mrs. Dot Halstead, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Community Betterment Committee.

To qualify for the star the city had to meet the standards for public water supply, city sewer system and for street lighting.

The water supply received final approval from the Missouri Division of Health and the city has been issued an effluent standards permit by the Missouri Clean Water Commission.

Approval of the street lighting system, the third phase in the utilities criteria, entitles the city to display the third star on the community betterment signs at the entrance to New Madrid.

Buz Southerland, of Jefferson City, Southeast Missouri Community Betterment specialist, made the third star presentation to the Community Betterment Committee.

The other two stars awarded earlier to the city were in the areas of education and community planning.

Areas remaining to achieve five -star status for the city include transportation and community services.

Mrs. Halstead said this year's Community Betterment program scrapbook was sent to Jefferson City Monday to be judged along with others from towns with a population of 2,500 to 5,000.

Tools stolen

Thieves took $300 worth of assorted tools from a pickup truck at the Rodney Bridger home, 817 Cambridge Drive, and an undetermined amount of change from four Daily Standard newspaper vending machines.

Bridger reported the theft Monday morning and told police the thieves broke open a locked box on the back of his pickup while it was parked at his home. The tools were kept in the box.

The newspaper vending machines were broken into Monday night or early this morning at locations in the Quick Sak Grocery, 110 Branum Ave.; Sterling Store, 105 -107 N. New Madrid St.; Lindsey's M and H Supermarket, 863 W. Malone Ave.; and the Big K store on S. Kingshighway

Thieves pried open the machines to get to the coin boxed. An undetermined amount of money was taken.

Herbert Yancy, 208 Harry St., told police Monday he had $75 worth of metric calibrated tools stolen Friday from a tent in City Park.

He said the tools were in an Army Backpack in the back of the tent.

Yancy said he left the park at 2 p.m., and when he returned at 8 p.m., the tools were gone.

Holley was born Sept. 29, 1909 in Mississippi to the late John and Minnie Holley.

On Nov. 1, 1935, he married Ruby M. Baker, who survives.

The family has lived in Portageville for 35 years.

Other survivors include two brothers, Harold Holley of Memphis, Tenn., and Dewey Holley of Farmington.

Friends may call at H. S. Smith Funeral Home in Caruthersville until Wednesday morning when the body will be moved to First Baptist Church in Portageville for visitation after 10 a.m.

Services are scheduled in the church at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Revs. Richard Adams and Owen Sherrill officiating.

Burial will be in Portageville Cemetery.

election in doubt since each of the challenged ballots were voted by a qualified voter properly registered in Mississippi County.

The petition further stated that there is a possibility of human error in the counting of each and every ballot cast in the race for presiding judge of the county and in each voting precinct of Mississippi County and that, due to the closeness of the results of the race for said office, there could be a sufficient number of mistakes to place in doubt the result of the nomination contested.

Winchester requested the Court to order a recount of each vote cast in the election for presiding judge and order each challenged and uncounted absentee ballot be included and counted.

conciliation, compromise and cooperation."

But the applause was noticeably louder from Ford's fellow Republicans, than from the majority Democrats, when the President pledged to fight for a balanced budget while maintaining a strong defense.

"It's going to be quite a trick to balance the budget by fiscal 1976, and not cut the Pentagon budget," said Sen. Phillip A. Hart, D-Mich.

developed the work road to the dry area of the landfill because of large sand pockets. The timber needed clearing away and a retention pond had not been constructed below the site.

Roberts said he informed Waters he would accept a proposal if it went by the engineer's plans and also needed a time table saying when the projects would be completed. Roberts said he did not receive a reply from the letter, although Judge Lankford said he had sent one.

The last investigation of the landfill was made July 26 by inspectors Jack Painter and Jim Huck of the Missouri Division of Health at Poplar Bluff. Roberts said it was indicated at that time by the inspectors that the landfill was not being operated by the approved plans.

According to Roberts, the men stated that it was their opinion that it was almost physically impossible to correct the situation. Roberts then sent another letter to Lankford explaining the situation and advised him that the landfill could no longer stay in operation unless the court could demonstrate how it could bring the landfill to comply with the law.

Roberts said it was preferred that the engineer make a proposal on how the problem could be corrected and submit it to the Division of Health for approval. He said the court would be given a reasonable amount of time to correct the situation, as long as it showed it was trying.

But if the court fails to do this, the landfill will be shut down.

Monday, during the meeting between state inspectors, and the County Court, the judges were defensive about the problem. The judges asked why the inspectors wanted to be hard on them when Mississippi County did not have a site approved.

Judge Lankford told Roberts that Monday was a bad day at the landfill and that on days it rained it was impossible to cover the refuse.

Roberts said this was not a correct statement because it had been demonstrated and proved that it could be covered regardless of rain. He said Scott County was not the only county with a landfill problem.

"Our landfill is clean enough to have a fish fry ...with no flies," said Eldon Ziegenhorn, first district associate judge.

When Judge Lankford asked for an approved sanitary landfill site Roberts informed him that Lemonds sanitary landfill north of Dexter was meeting state requirements.

Fire marshal has no cause for fire

PORTAGEVILLE --Louis Gray, a representative of the state fire marshal's office in Jefferson City, said Monday he had been unable at this time to determine the cause of an early Friday morning fire which destroyed a garage and two cars at the home of Leon Sallwaechter, 111 E. Sixth St.

Saalwaechter is president of Farmers Bank of Portageville.

Gray has cited arson as the cause of a major fire on Aug. 3 which leveled six public housing units and damaged four others under consturction at the intersection of First and Huffman streets.

Stoddard County looks for ambulance drivers

BLOOMFIELD — How and where to obtain volunteer ambulance attendants and the training of volunteers were the main topics of discussion at the Monday night meeting of the Stoddard County Ambulance District, held in the Circuit Courtroom.

The 81- hour training course required for all ambulance attendants will begin Aug. 19 at the Sikeston Vocational School. The class will meet Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 to 9 o'clock and cost of the course will be $15.

Three Rivers Junior College at Poplar Bluff will offer a course beginning Aug. 28. The class will meet from 6 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays. The cost will be $45 per semester or a total of $90 for the two - semester course.

According to Chairman Jack Smarr of Dexter, registered nurses or doctors will not be required to take the course. However, licensed practical nurse training will not be acceptable and LPN volunteers will be required to complete the course.

Volunteers who wish to begin the ambulance training course should contact Jack Smarr at Dexter, Ray Coats at Bernie, Bill Peopplemeyer at Bloomfield, Wesley Cowan at Essex, David Cummings at Advance or John Roach at Puxico. All fees and mileage expenses to and from the school site will be paid for by the district.

The board of trustees discussed at length volunteer personnel versus salaried personnel and determined it would be impossible to hire enough salaried personnel with the expected income of the district.

The board then decided to run an ad in the three daily newspapers asking for volunteers. Each board member will also seek volunteers in his own district by appealing to local civic and service clubs.

The possibilities of starting the ambulance service district using only one of the four allotted ambulances were discussed and it was decided that if this should occur, the ambulance would be based at Advance. The cities of Dexter, Bernie and Puxico already have an ambulance service in operation.

In other action, the board voted to accept the district's bylaws. Contents of the bylaws state that Bloomfield will be the district's principal office, the regular meeting will be held the second and fourth Mondays of each month, and the directors shall be elected by registered voters on the first Tuesday in April of each year, with the next election to be held in April of 1975 at which time two directors will be elected. It further states that the district's fiscal year will begin Jan. 1 and end Dec. 31, and that at an annual meeting an election of officers will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of June each year.

Ray Coats of Bernie and Jack Smarr of Dexter will meet Thursday night to complete plans for ambulance service fees.

Pair gets suspended sentence

Two persons received suspended jail sentences today in Magistrate Cou t proceedings in the Sikeston City Courtroom, and three other persons appeared on charges of possessing marijuana.

Dora Ethel Johnson, Route Four, received a six -month suspended sentence for driving while intoxicated and another six -month suspended sentence for driving with revoked license. She was placed on probation for two years.

Jimmy W. Powers, 334 Sunset Drive, was given a 30 -day suspended sentence for nonsupport. He also received two years on probation.

The marijuana possession cases included: Ronald Joe Yant, 312 Selma St., continued to Sept. 10; Danny Boese of Illmo, pleaded guilty; sentencing deferred to Aug. 12, 1975; and Tharon Kennedy of Allenville, continued to Aug. 20.

Charles David Howard, Route Two, was arraigned on a charge of felonious assault stemming from an Aug. 2 incident in which he allegedly tried to run over a woman with his automobile.

A bogus check charge against Mary Tucker was continued to Aug. 27.

Ford plans summit on economic woes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is moving swiftly to plan an economic summit conference to battle inflation which he labeled "Domestic Enemy No. 1." And he is pressing Congress to act within 10 days to revive the government's tools to monitor wages and prices.

Key congressional Democrats moved quickly today to fulfill Ford's request to reactivate the Cost of Living Council to monitor wages and prices.

But they pointedly were not predicting that either the proposed summit or the renewed wage-price monitoring would bring a quick end to inflation.

Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee said a bill to reactivate the Cost of Living Council will be introduced promptly and considered by the committee on Wednesday.

House Speaker Carl Albert said he plans to meet with Senate leaders to discuss expediting the legislation.

Congressional Democrats joined Republicans in applauding the tone of Ford's presidential keynote speech Monday night. But some said they will have to be convinced the new President can find the correct cure for the nation's soaring prices.

Ford spoke to a packed House chamber and millions across the country, calling on Congress to join "in getting this country revved up and moving" and pledging to seek a balanced federal budget in the fiscal year starting next July 1.

He never referred directly to the Watergate scandal that drove Richard M. Nixon from the presidency last week but pledged, "There will be no illegal tapings, eavesdropping, buggings or break-ins by my administration."

And Ford mentioned his predecessor's name only once, declaring he has supported and will continue "the outstanding foreign policy of President Nixon."

He made no mention of perhaps his most immediate problem —the choice of a new vice president. Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott said earlier Monday Ford is "nowhere near" making a decision.

At the invitation of the Fords, the former president's daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, and her husband David joined the new First Family in the Executive Gallery. The former President watched at his San Clemente, Calif., home and wired Ford: "Congratulations on a Splendid Speech."

On the floor of the House chamber, an unusually large number of congressmen and senators were present to hear the 38th President outline his goals for the two-year, five-month remainder of Nixon's shattered presidency.

Ford proposed little specific legislation—the wage-price monitoring authority now and a health insurance measure before the end of the year.

And he said the nation's voters should support the candidates this November "who consistently vote for tough decisions to cut the cost of government, restrain federal spending and bring inflation under control."

Waves of cheers and applause thunderd across the cavernous chamber as Ford was escorted in. And members of both parties cheered when the 25-year congressional veteran declared his motto towards Congress: "Communication,

Man found dead in car

William Otis Holley, 64, of Portageville was found dead at 7:40 p.m. Monday behind the steering wheel of his station wagon, which was parked with the engine running on the west shoulder of Highway 61 two and one -half miles south of Sikeston, the highway patrol reported today.

A patrol spokesman said Holley's body was discovered by Jimmy Lee Peavy, 33, of Sikeston Route Three after Peavy noticed the car parked with the engine running. Residents of the area said the car had been parked in that area since about 3 p.m.

New Madrid County Coroner Gene Clayton ruled that Holley died of natural caused.

Clayton said it appeared that Holley had been dead from three to four hours and that he had a history of heart trouble.

Although the car motor was still running and the windows were closed except for one which was slightly open, Clayton reported no signs of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Holley was an electrician and had reportedly been to Sikeston to buy some electrical supplies.

The body was taken to Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid, then moved to Smith Funeral Home in Caruthersville, where funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Election contested

CHARLESTON — A petition was filed today in Mississippi County Circuit Court by W. H. Winchester Jr. contesting the outcome of the race for presiding judge of the County Court in the Aug. 6 primary election, in which Ralph Adkisson received an official count of 2,036 votes to Winchester's 2,032 votes.

A hearing on the petition has been set for 9 a.m. Friday in Circuit Court.

The petition states that Winchester, the incumbent, desires to challenge the correctness of the tabulation of votes for the presiding judge office.

Charges set forth in the petition include:

— In Charleston voting precinct 4, there was an irregularity on the tally sheets wherein the total votes give Adkisson on the original tally sheet were 253, when the total votes as indicated by individual tallies were actually only 153.

— In The Bertrand precinct irregularities were found on the face of the tally sheets in that the total on one tally sheet did not equal the total tally of the other sheet in the race for state auditor or in the race for associate judge of the County Court first district.

— In the Wyatt precinct irregularities were found in tally sheets in that the totals of one tally sheet did not match totals of the other tally sheets in the face for 10th District U. S. representative and in the race for state representative of Distict 160.

In East Prairie precinct 1 and Charleston precinct 5 (rural) irregularities were made in the tally sheets of each precinct in that the totals on said tally sheets did not conform to one another in the vote on the county zoning proposal.

— In East Prairie precinct 1 there were irregularities in the counting of the ballots in that only one election judge and two election clerks were present when the count of the ballots was made, therefore there was no election judge present to watch the ballots as they were counted to insure no mistakes were made as required by the statutes of the State of Missouri.

— In the Anniston precinct there were irregularities in the counting of ballots, in that only one election judge and two election clerks were present when the counting of the ballots was made, therefore, there was no election judge present to watch the ballots as they were counted to insure that no mistakes were made.

— There were more than four absentee ballots that were improperly challenged and not counted and that the counting of said ballots, which are greater than the margin of defeat, as more fully set out, places the

Landfill problems checked

Jim Huck, left, and Rick Roberts, center, representatives of the Missouri Division of Health, and Eldon Ziegenhorn, associate judge of the Scott County Court, discuss refuse at the county - administered sanitary landfill.

Landfill will be closed unless it is cleaned up

BENTON --The Missouri Division of Health informed the Scott County Court Monday that unless the sanitary landfill north of Morley meets state requirements within an adequate amount of time it will be closed. The warning was issued after state officials accompanied members of the County Court to the landfill site and discovered that it was being operated improperly.

Rick L. Roberts, chief of solid waste technical services, Bureau of Solid Waste Management, told the County Court in a meeting Monday that the sanitary landfill was not operating by the approved plans that had been submitted to the Division of Health.

The state officials will hold another meeting with the County Court at 9:30 a.m. Thursday to review approved engineer plans and to inform the court what it must do so the landfill will meet state approval.

According to Roberts, the landfill was first inspected in September of 1973 and at that time the operator, Raymond Glaus of Sikeston, was subleasing it from the court. Roberts said it was found at that time that the landfill was not being operated adequately and recommendations were submitted to Glaus concerning the situation. He said Glaus covered the refuse and allowed to continue operating the landfill.

After the County Court assumed the operation of the landfill in October of 1973, another investigation was conducted. According to Roberts, a letter was sent to Presiding Judge Les Lankford on Nov. 30 stating recommendations that should be made correcting the landfill. In the letter Roberts said it was stated that the site was definitely not being operated like a sanitary landfill should be.

Another investigation was conducted in January of 1974 and Roberts said it was found that the situation had not been corrected and the landfill was still being operated like a dump.

Roberts said he received a letter from Lankford, who said previous owners had not operated the landfill by approved engineer plans and the court anticipated that it would have the site developed by March 1.

According to Roberts, he informed C.R. Waters, the county engineer, of the letter he received and told Waters the landfill site had not been developed according to engineer plans and some improvements would have to be made. Roberts said previous landowners had not

Two hurt seriously in accidents

Two of six traffic accident victims received serious injuries in five accidents on area roads Monday and early today, according to the highway patrol.

William Henry Jones, 36, of Scott City received serious injuries in a two -car accident at 8:15 p.m. Monday on Interstate 55 half a mile south of Cape Girardeau.

The accident occurred when a car driven by James Kenneth Elkins, 31, of Union was traveling south in the northbound lane with headlights off and collided head on with the Jones vehicle.

Jones was taken to Southeast Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

A one -car accident at 10:50 p.m. Monday on Highway 72 two miles west of Jackson resulted in minor injuries to Mark Laclair, 16, of Jackson. Laclair was a passenger in a pickup truck driven west on Highway 72 by Harold Keith Ruesler, 17, of Jackson.

The highway patrol reported the Ruesler auto was traveling at an excessive rate of speed when the driver lost control on a curve and the vehicle skidded 411 feet, then overturned several times in a field.

Laclair was treated at Southeast Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

Two persons received minor injuries in a one -car accident at 1 p.m. Monday on Route U one mile west of New Madrid.

Johnson received minor injuries, as did his wife, Doris Ann Johnson, 24, of New Madrid. They were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

One person received possibly serious injuries in a one -vehicle accident at 6:15 p.m. Monday on a sand road in New Madrid County one mile north of Howardville. The accident happened when a pickup truck driven by Ruby Lee Stevenson, 35, of Howardville ran off the road on a curve and struck an embankment and some trees.

She was taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital, where she refused to undergo treatment.

Rosemary Wright, 35, of Oxly was seriously injured at 2:35 a.m. today on Highway 160 one -half mile west of Doniphan when her westbound truck ran off the road over an embankment and overturned.

She was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

Application for port authority to be submitted

CAPE GIRARDEAU -A temporary port authority committee from Cape Girardeau and Scott counties announced Monday that it will submit an application for joint port authority on Aug. 26 with the Department of Transportation at Jefferson City.

The committee made the decision during a meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce building in Cape Girardeau.

Bob Hendrix, manager of the Chamber of Commerce at Cape Girardeau, said it was also decided that a committee will go to Memphis, Tenn, and Greenville, Miss. to examine their port authorities. The date for the trip will be scheduled during the Aug. 26 meeting.

FBI HITS
ITS STRIDE

FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley has given the American public a most successful report of his first year as head of the country's top law enforcement agency.

Three segments of the report are especially worthy of mention. Director Kelley says the agency is increasing its search for communist spies, bearing down on organized crime, and lifting the Bureau out of the influence of politics.

Regarding the hunt for communist espionage agents, Kelley pointed out that there is an increasing number of visitors from Communist nations pouring into the country, especially from China and the Soviet Union. This increase is calling for more counterspionage activity on the part of the FBI.

"We are redirecting some of our manpower in order that we might give this situation additional attention," he said. "We are giving it additional emphasis."

It is encouraging that the FBI Director has not been swayed by the so-called "liberal" media and politicians who try to pass off the legitimate search for communist spies in this country as "witch hunts."

Director Kelley's report points out that more than 1,250 from the ranks of organized criminals were convicted last year, and that 2,600 members of organized crime are currently being prosecuted. The report also records that last year, FBI investigation led to convictions in 15,240 cases.

Kelley also noted that a "major portion" of the FBI investigating efforts is being directed at kidnap cases. Most of the cases are successfully concluded with the victim returned, the kidnappers arrested and most, if not all, of the ransom money recovered. In fiscal 1974, 96 convictions were obtained in kidnapping cases.

Such a record is outstanding. We are proud of Director Kelley's record and urge all honest citizens to give the Bureau their full support.

Members of Congress pressing for sweeping national health insurance might ponder a Rand Corp. study released last week. The report, given scant attention in the press, concludes that a comprehensive program would swamp doctors' offices and outpatient clinics throughout the country. Result: Patients would experience delays in getting appointments and doctors would have less time to spend with them. Delays would cause some patients -- those with untreated glaucoma, for instance -- to suffer permanent eye damage or blindness.

ENERGY
SERVITUDE

Petroleum industry leaders and other highly competent authorities have spoken in the strongest terms of the threat to national security implicit in growing American dependence on foreign oil imports. Typical of this view in the opinion of Dr. Richard J. Gonzalez of Houston, Texas, who testified before a Congressional Subcommittee on the necessity of encouraging more rapid development of potential U. S. resources of all forms of energy. Among other points he made was that heavy reliance on foreign oil "involves risks to national security and to freedom of action in international affairs."

Almost at the very moment he was testifying, foreign nations were using the club of petroleum to curb U. S. "... freedom of action in international affairs." A news dispatch in The Washington Post said, "A steadily hardening Egyptian reaction to the American decision to resume Phantom fighter - bomber deliveries to Israel is now leading to the possibility of threat to American oil interests in the Arab world." An Egyptian official, continued the report, "... urged the Arab states to agree to give no more concessions to American companies and to impose a 'liberation tax' on U. S. oil companies now operating in Arab countries."

As a matter of fact, the United States is periously close to a position of energy servitude. Dr. Gonzalez cited a number of factors which have raised this grim specter. These include: "... delays in Alaska, restrictions on the development of oil off the coast of California, delays in offshore leasing by the federal government, and opposition to offshore leasing along the East Coast ..."

Now that the public has seen how the club of petroleum imports can be used by a foreign power, the term national security should have greater meaning, and there should be less tolerance of those who have been more concerned with searching for and blocking the so-called "selfish" interest in assuring adequate energy supplies.

ECONOMIC DOUBLE
CROSS IN CHILE

Inflation is no respector of political labels. Chilean voters adopted a communist form of government because of the inability of the previous administration to halt inflation. Far from halting inflation, however, the Chilean switch in political philosophy has had no important impact on the course of inflation. In fact, the nation seems to have jumped from the frying pan into the fire. Gasoline prices have increased 20 per cent in recent months; required school uniforms, 30 per cent; airlines tickets, 15 per cent, etc.

A press report states, "Sudden price increases, erratic shortages and consumer spending at an intensive pace are symptoms of rising inflationary pressure, fed by huge emissions of currency and temporarily increased purchasing power in the hands of wage- earners." Price controls, it is said, have never been effecitve in stemming Chiliean inflation. Chile, therefore, has become one more demonstration of the losing battle that any nation fights when government seeks to manage inflation with controls rather than balanced budgets.

MENACE OF
"CHEAP POWER"

Countless experts have made the observation that archaic regulation is the root of most of the troubles of the common carrier transportation industry. Other segments of the utility industry besides transportation are subjected to stringent rate regulation. The course this regulation now takes as regards the investor-owned electric light and power industry will largely determine the energy future of the United States -- or in plain language tomorrow's standard of living, tomorrow's environment and tomorrow's quality of life. All of these hinge upon an abundant supply of energy particularly electric energy.

Several months ago, Mr. Shearon Harris, the head of a major electric company and chairman of the Edison Electric Institute, reported that the electric industry must make research and development expenditures over the next 29 years at an average rate of $1.12 billion annually. But, he added, "Perplexing problems of financing are posed by the peculiar forces which inhibit R&D investment within regulated utilities. In our enterprise system, the profit motive normally stimulates investment in research and development. In the case of regulated utilities, which must pass along to the customer such benefits in the form of reduced rates, not only does the incentive not exist, but the system actually works in a counterproductive fashion ... It is essential that regulatory commissions recognize the research and development expenditures as allowable for rate- making purposes ..."

The costs of research and development in the utility industry as well as the costs of new plant construction and other facilities that will assure the adequacy of future energy supplies must be faced squarely by the energy- consuming public -- and by the authorities responsible for setting rates. In this case, an archaic regulatory approach, i.e. "cheap power" for the people, would constitute a clear and present threat to the basic energy supply of the U. S. as well as to the nation's hope of an improved environment.

POLITICAL SYRUP

Let someone suggest that expenditures for space exploration have been a good investment, and he is promptly shot down. However, the day of another story is coming. Dr. Wernher vonBraun gives a late report in Parade magazine.

Back in 1969, thanks to satellite pictures, the U. S. National Oceanic and Atmosphereic Administration has estimated that the lives of 50,000 people were saved that would otherwise have been in the path of Hurricane Camille when it hit the Gulf Coast. Also, Dr. Von Braun, former associate administrator of NASA, advises that, "Today satellites carry about half the world's international telephone, telegraph and television load ... Or take computers. The demands of space flight pushed computer technology forward so fast that it is an $8- billion- a - year industry that employs more than 800,000 people. Thousands of new products and industrial processes have been introduced as the result of the space program."

The list of benefits from space exploration will continue to pour in — notwithstanding the street corner skeptics who like the flavor of government projects best when they are covered with political syrup.

WOMEN'S INTUITION,
CURIOSITY VALUABLE

That Sixth Sense — intuition — which everyone ought to know women have in abundance, is being recognized as a valuable asset in the investigative field.

Pinkerson's Inc., an investigative firm, is recruiting women in its 105 offices across the United States. The applicants being sought will be investigators, store detectives, uniformed guards, airport security personnel, and campus patrol guards.

One basic qualification required for entering the security field, according to Pinkerton's, seems to be "curiosity." And, as everybody also ought to know, curiosity is as instinctive to a woman as intuition.

No peace abroad

The outbreak of fighting on Cyprus illustrates how delicate the peace of the world is. Oil has been poured on the troubled waters of the eastern end of the Mediterranean but the national passions and natural enmities of Greeks and Turks still run high there. Even as the great powers maneuver to put the lid on, some fighting continues. The world has not learned to live in peace.

Action on Cyprus came in the wake of a piecemeal solution of the war in the Middle East but a spark there could set off a conflagration. Vested interests of the great powers are even deeper in the Arab -Israeli area than on Cyprus but in these times it is difficult to isolate a war, and so Cyprus still poses a threat.

On the other side of the world, heavy fighting continues in Indochina despite the "peace" arrangements of the U.S. This is a continuation of the conflict that started in the 1950s and seems destined to continue forever. There seems to be no successful instrument of keeping the peace. Certainly the United Nations has not provided it anymore than did the League of Nations after World War I.

There are two things the United States can do to contribute to peace. It can keep open its good offices to other powers and aid in negotiations. It can keep its defenses honed. A strong American defense posture is the one factor in international politics the communists understand. HLH

THE SANS SOUCI
WILL CONTINUE
By Art Buchwald

One of Gerald Ford's first acts as President was to ask Paul Delisle to stay on as maitre d' of the Sans Souci Restaurant. As most people know all the important government decisions are made at lunch time at the Sans Souci, and the President felt it was essential that in order to have an orderly transition of government no personnel changes should take place at the restaurant.

A White House aide told me, "We feel that Paul will serve us with the same loyalty that he served previous administrations. The whole world is watching what we do, and I can't think of a better way of instilling confidence than Paul remaining in this key post in government."

Many ambassadors who eat at the Sans Souci expressed delight at the news that the President asked Paul to stay on. "We don't know President Ford," one told me, "but we do know Paul and we can deal with him. I have already cabled my government that Mr. Delisle will keep his maitre d' post, and despite the changeover in government our country can still be assured of a table."

Lawyers and high officials of the media were also pleased that Paul would stay on. One leading pundit said, "In this grave hour of crisis the country needs continuity.

"By asking Paul to keep his position Mr. Ford is saying, 'no matter what happens America will survive.' "

As soon as the announcement was made I went over to see Paul to congratulate him on the appointment.

He read a statement. "I am proud and humble that the White House would ask me to remain in office. I promise to see that mothing but the prices will change at the Sans Souci. Despite the anguish of the past year and the shock that everyone has undergone, we must never forget government officials still have to eat. We have to forget the past and look to the future. The Sans Souci stands ready to face the challenge. I will now take questions."

"Paul, it seems to me your major problem is going to be to take care of President Ford's aides who work at the White House. How will you be able to do this?"

"It will be hard at first because I won't know who they are. Unless they make the reservation in the name of the White House, I may make a mistake and turn them away, but as time goes on I will know where the power is and adjust my reservation list accordingly.

"But can you handle all this new business?"

"I believe I can. Many of the former Nixon aides are no longer in Washington, for one reason or another, so their tables will be filled by the new regime."

"Will you still accept reservations from former Nixon people who have not been sent away?"

"Of course. They may have to wait until the present White House staff is fed, but as long as I am maitre d' anyone who worked in the White House and can still afford it will be welcome. I still have customers from the Kennedy and Johnson administrations and, although they no longer have decision-making powers, they get the same food as everybody else."

"One last question. Some of the plotting of Watergate and the coverup took place at the Sans Souci. Did the FBI ever question you about what you knew?"

"Yes, but I couldn't give them much help. Every time they asked me about someone I always replied "That wasn't my table.' "

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
The Real Gerald Ford

WASHINGTON --Behind the broad shoulders, squaredjaw and ruggedly handsome features, what is President Gerald Ford really like?

We have checked with congressional sleuths, who in preparation for Ford's vice presidential confirmation hearings earlier this year, gave him the most thorough investigation of any man who has ever assumed office. We have talked privately with some of his most intimate friends. We have obtained access to the confidential audit of his tax returns.

From these sources, we have put together a portrait of an intensely human President, basically decent, inherently honest, without guile, who still would like his friends to call him "Jerry."

He uses expletives that would be deleted from White House transcripts, but he never would pretend he didn't. His profanity is good -natured, not vicious characterizations of his enemies.

When Ford first learned about the Nixon "enemies lits," he remarked in disbelief: "If you have so many enemies you have to keep a list, you are in trouble."

Nor have his friends ever heard him, even in his most relaxed moments, let an ethnic slur slip by. He has often voted against the economic interests of the blacks. At first he opposed but later supported civil rights legislation. When the black congressional caucus opposed his confirmation as vice president, Ford was hurt.

"You would think they would know me better," he told a friend sadly.

Another friend recalls watching a TV newscast with Ford when the cameras focused on an impoverished black family being evicted from their home in Mississippi. Ford jumped up in agitation.

"What a shame! What a shame!" he exclaimed. "A country this rich can do better."

The new President has a robust sense of humor and enjoys locker -room jokes. In the backrooms, he has the loose masculine manner of the football star he once was.

He belts an occasional drink and doesn't try to hide the fact. For his thirsty friends, he mixed the drinks himself and never summons an aide to wait on him.

A visitor caught him in shirt sleeves helping to pack the crates when he moved from his congressional office to the vice presidential quarters. The visitor, not recognizing the muscular Ford, mistook him to be the chief of the moving crew.

Afterward, a friend asked him why he didn't let his staff handle the packing. "Oh, shrugged Ford, "this is the kind of thing I can do."

After he was appointed Vice president, we phoned him at his modest Alexandria, Va. , home and got a man's voice on the other end. It was Ford still answering his own telephone.

The President instinctively likes people and is concerned about them. He tied up a friend for long hours helping him with vice presidential arrangements. The friend's exasperated wife finally complained that he may as well not bother to come home but stay at the Fords'.

Gerald Ford picked up the phone and apologized to her. "I just couldn't have gotten by without him," said Ford about her husband. She was flustered but mollified.

At a small social gathering, another friend recalls, the men were talking about world affairs and the women were discussing the problems of the handicapped. The compassionate Ford shifted his attention to the women's conversation.

As Washington watchdogs, we have had occasion to check into reports that Ford has misused campaign money. We discovered on the contrary that he has always refused to accept cash contributions. He has insisted upon checks, which can be properly recorded. We never found the slightest evidence that he ever diverted a dime for his own personal use.

The audit of his tax returns confirmed our findings. Once he mistakenly spent $1,167 in political funds for a family trip to their condominium in the Vail, Colo., ski country. The moment he discovered the bookkeeping mistake, he immediately reimbursed the political account.

The Internal Revenue Service also disallowed an $871.44 deduction that Ford had taken for the special clothing he purchased for the 1972 Republican convention. The IRS ruled that the new suits were not "unique or distinctive" in character and, therefore, leveled a $4,355.77 tax deficiency against Ford.

Ford's lawyers assured him that he was entitled to the deduction and could defeat the IRS in tax court. Nevertheless, Ford issisted upon giving the government the benefit of any doubt nad ordered his accountants to write the IRS a check.

Ford's returns show he earned a total income of $224,364.10 for the first three years of the 1970s. He paid $75,111.44, or about a third of his income, in federal taxes. An additional $6,261.42 was paid to Michigan in state taxes.

The FBI investigation of Ford before his confirmation as vice presient was so thorough, he was told, that agents even questioned a high school football player who allegedly had been kneed by Ford in a tough -fought game. The referees threw Ford out of the game over the incident.

As Ford was later told, his former football rival confirmed that Ford had been ejected from the game but confessed that Ford had never actually kneed him.

Ford commented to friends that he was pleased the FBI had been so thorough.

Uncovered Angle? The Wiretap Law -- And Watergate

Ralph Salerno is more than a good friend. He is my idea of THE honest man. Certainly he is one of the land's most informed men --as compared with an agency --on the organized criminal syndicates which loot this nation of billions annually. For many years, young as he is now, he headed the famed New York City police "Mafia Desk." I asked him to look at the Watergate phenomenon and come up with an angle which has not been covered. Here's what he found, written exclusively for this column:

By Ralph Salerno
Chief investigator,
District Attorney's Office,
Queens County (N.Y.)
And author of
'The Crime Confederation'

NEW YORK –The number of words that have been expended in reporting and analyzing the Watergate case must total in the millions. Talk shows have had at it; print media has oversated the nation and transcripts of congressional hearings and released White House tapes have all come into the public domain. It seems remarkable that despite reporting from almost every angle a key aspect of the entire affair has escaped notice.

The minor matter of a break -in directed by political zealots exploded into much greater proportions when federal Judge John Sirica pried open the lips of James McCord, one of the conspirators. What has been overlooked, or at least insufficiently reported, is that to do so, the judge used for leverage the criminal sanctions of what had been a highly controversial piece of legislation only six years ago: Title III of the Omnibus Crime Bill and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Title III is the federal wiretap law which grants limited use of electronic surveillance to law enforcement, under court control, and expressly forbids all other uses as a serious violation of law. In 1963, Robert F. Kennedy, then Attorney General and a major proponent of the statute, graphically described its need in testimony before Sen. McClellan's Investigating Committee. He pointed out, "The present statute (Sec. 605 of the Federal Communications Act) fails to protect the right of privacy over the telephone because anyone can listen without violating that statute. At present, to convict someone of illegal wiretapping, we must not only prove that a tap was made but also that there was unlawful disclosure of the conversation." In other words, just being caught in the basement of the Watergate as the burglars were would not have substantiated a wiretap charge under the old law. Sirica would not have been able to impose a sentence of six years and eight months on Gordon Liddy, and the threat of a one -year sentence for breaking in would probably not have swayed McCord.

The position of various key players in the ensuing drama with regard to the wiretap law that made it all possible is interesting. Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina does not favor wiretapping and has helped prevent enactment of such legislation in his home state. His chief counsel, Samuel Dash, was an outspoken apponent of Title III. Ramsey Clark when Attorney General joined President Lyndon Johnson in violent opposition to the enactment of the statute. Leon Jaworski while serving on the President's Crime Commission voted against it. There are many people who challenged Kennedy's position who appear to be enjoying important roles in the situation his statute brought about.

It is a paradox then that "The Watergate mess in Washington" is serving to defeat attempts to get similar legislation enacted in Iowa, Texas, California and elsewhere. Watergate should have made the point that, in the hands of a judge with the backbone to use its sanctions, such a law serves to protect privacy. Its affirmative usefulness if made clear by the colossal goof committed by a central Watergate figure, former U.S. Attorney John Mitchell. The statue requires the Attorney General or an assistant specially designated by him to approve court applications. Mitchell was so busy seeking the reelection of the President he neglected to personally approve a number of wiretap applications and allowed them to be initialed on his behalf by an executive aide. Some 600 indictments, mostly against major organized crime figures and heroin importers, may be dismissed as a result.

In 1973 the federal government installed only 130 wiretaps, about 15 per cent of the total. The remainder were by local law enforcement agencies in the states that allow wiretapping. It is easy to see that if 600 major indictments can result in a compartively short period of time, even with limited use, the value to law enforcement is immeasurable. But the reaction to Watergate goes further than wiretapping. Several bills, including one by Ervin, seek to limit information that can be kept in police files. If these bills had been law a year ago, police material on the Symbionese Liberation Army would not have been available at the time of the Patty Hearst kidnapping. Criminal groups such as the S.L.A. who commit murder, kidnapping, bank robbery and extortion by cloaking themselves in political rhetoric can hold back investigation until after they have been proven to have committed criminal acts. If a group of heroin importers sends a cassette to the media stating they are a political movement we might have to destroy all files on them.

It would be a shame if we fail to realize that the statute that made Watergate possible is needed at the state level. Kennedy had asked for wiretapping and immunity because it would be helpful in fighting "organized crime and political corruption." His request was prophetic. The political corruption of Watergate may be the worst kind of organized crime ever discovered.

Unemployment payments decrease for month

JEFFERSON CITY — Unemployment insurance benefit payments in Missouri decreased in July, and fewer weeks of unemployment are compensated under the program financed by payroll taxes paid by employers.

Among counties showing a decrease in payments were Mississippi and Stoddard. Scott and New Madrid counties, however, reported slight increases.

Mississippi County benefit payments decreased from $16,287 in June to $16,149 in July. The county's payments were also lower than the $15,604 paid in July 1973.

In Stoddard County payments fell from $33,237 in June to $31,026 in July. Payments in the county in July 1973 had been $25,267.

Scott County's July payments totaled $27,202, compared with $22,169 in June and $26,029 in July 1973.

New Madrid County payments rose to $11,307 from $10,914 in June, but were well under the $23,041 paid in July 1973.

John F. Meystrik, director of the Division of Employment Security, reported $6,654,635 was paid out statewide in July, compared to $7,243,285 in June. Meystrik said weekly benefits averaged $53.24.

Of the more than $6 million in benefit payments, Meystrik said, $544,730 was paid out in federally funded benefits to unemployment former federal civilian employes and to veterans.

Meystrik said July unemployment insurance claims increased as seasonal layoffs occurred in garment and shoe industries.

Firemen called

Firemen were called at 9:08 p.m. Monday to a fire in an abandoned house at 209 Alabama St.

The fire was started in an old mattress by children playing with matches, according to firemen.

The fire destroyed the mattress but was extinguished before it damaged the old frame house, which is located at the end of a row of abandoned houses on Alabama Street.

Hearing starts today on farm investigation

JEFFERSON CITY — State Rep. D. R. Osbourn, D-Monroe City, has released details regarding a legislative committee public hearing on an investigative study into certain ailing segments of Missouri's agricultural industry.

Osbourn is chairman of a special committee of the Missouri Legislature authorized to make a thorough and comprehensive investigation into the factors relating to possible inequities in the production and distribution of milk, as well as the production of beef, pork and poultry. Particularly, the committee will look into milk pricing practices, including prices and costs to the producers and consumers of milk and milk products in Missouri.

Osbourn pointed out that Missouri farmers are "literally taking a beating" in the state's agricultural economy and that findings of the investigation will determine the need for remedial legislation, if any, to solve the existing problems.

The public hearing was held in the Senate lounge in the Capitol Building in Jefferson City today at 10 a.m. In announcing the public hearing, Osbourn urged anyone having information pertinent to the investigative study to appear and present testimony for consideration of the committee. He strongly urged farm organizations, dairy farmers, milk processors, hog and beef producers, etc., to attend the hearing.

The committee, Osbourn said, "is hopeful the probe will reveal, particularly, the basic causative factors in the problems in the milk industry." The study was prompted, he said, by the recent controversy over the milk pricing practices in southwest Missouri -- "the disparity between the unrealistic price of milk paid to the farmer - producer and the ultimate price paid by the milk consumer."

Also prompting the study is the proposed huge hog complex planned in northeast Missouri and the serious threat of massive corporate farming operations on the overall agricultural economy of the state and the general welfare of the people.

For further information regarding the investigation and the public hearing, Osbourn urged interested parties to contact the committee office in Jefferson City, telephone number 751-3676 or their state senator or state representative.

6 treated

Six accident patients were treated and released Monday in the emergency room at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Stolen car recovered

An automobile stolen about noon from the parking lot at the Scott County Welfare Department office, 312 E. Center St., was recovered by police about 7 p.m. on an unnamed street south of Linda Drive in the Hunter Acres West subdivision.

Police said the car is owned by Laura Brown of Chaffee, a case worker for the welfare department.

The car was spotted about 7 p.m. by a co-worker of Mrs. Brown, police said.

Three openings at Head Start

The Sikeston Head Start Center on Airport Drive has openings for a teacher, cook and janitor for the school term beginning Aug. 26, according to coordinator Wanda Rofkahr.

What's the law?

The case of the quarreling neighbors

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Irwin and Bert argued from different premises and, consequently, never made it as neighbors,. In fact, every time they patched up an argument, it was as good as new.

Irwin's consternation, however, reached a pique when he discovered that he had inadvertently paid one of Bert's tax bills which the authorities had inadvertantly mailed to his instead of Bert's address.

With outstretched palm, Irwin marched up to Bert's front door with hopeful expectation of being repaid. All he received from his neighbor, however, was an uncontrollable belly laugh.

"It's really very funny," quaked Bert, "and too bad for you. Since I never asked you to pay the bill, I have no obligation to reimburse you. But," he assured his neighbor, "don't think I don't appreciate it."

"You're not appreciative," was Irwin's answer. "You're crazy if you think you don't have to pay me back. I'm not going to let you get away with my paying your taxes and neither will the law."

Hurrying off to the nearest courthouse, Irwin sued his neighbor to recover the tax money erroneously paid.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Irwin to recover the money inadvertently paid for Bert's benefit?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a person pays another's bill without being asked to do so, he's a volunteer. And, concluded the judge, as a volunteer he cannot force the other person to pay him back.

INVESTING IN LAND

One of the n ice things about investing in land is that it rarely presents management problems. However, since it will produce no income, it should be bought only if you are financially able to carry the debt.

For the typical investment, you have to put down cash amounting to 25% to 50% of the total cost of the land, with regular payments on the remainder until the entire debt is paid. But if you prefer to pay taxes on a long- term capital gain, rather than ordinary income, then land can be an attractive investment.

The key to a good land investment is predicting land needs of the future. Here is where the experience of a good, local Realtor comes in. He has initmate knowledge of community needs, and can forecast, far better than the layman, what will be required for future land use and the best areas for growth potential.

Book Review

RULE BRITANNIA by Dphne du Maurier 19547 - $1.50 - Novel

The publication of RULE BRITANNIA, Daphne du Maurier's first novel in five years, brings the total number of her books in print in Avon paperback editions to nearly 5,000,000. RULE BRITANNIA sold 450,000 Doubleday hardcover copies when it first appeared last year, and was a Literary Guild selection.

Set in Cornwall, England, the author's home and the setting for many of her novels, RULE BRITANNIA takes place in the not-too-distant future. England drops out of the Common Market and joins with the United States to form the USUK and, in the ensuing confusion, American Marines land at the smallfishing village of Poldrea to protect, they claim, the Cornish coast from possible retaliatory invasion. But when the military begins to restrict the movements of the villagers with road blocks and auto passes, and when the water and power are cut off, a group of angry townspeople become convinced that the Americans themselves are the invaders. Madam —"Mad" - an eccentric, lively, eighty year old retired actress, heads the opposition, backed by her six adopted orphan boys, her motherless grandaughter Emma, and an enraged citizenry. Together with these picturesque allies and a Welsh hermit-squatter living on her land, Mad plays hilarious pranks and then plots more serious sabotage which effectively aid in breaking England's latest political alliance.

Body needs more salt in hot weather

This column is a service from cooperative extension nutritionists at Lincoln University and the University of Missouri. Questions from readers about food and diet are welcomed. Letters should be addressed to: Dr. James W. Norsdstrom, Nutrition Extension, Lincoln University, Jefferson City, Mo. 65101.

Q. Is it a good idea to eat extra meat and other - high - protein foods during hot weather?

A. No, because the body requires about the same amounts of protein, minerals and vitamins in hot or cold weather. Heavy sweating may increase the need for sodium which can easily be furnished by eating a little more table salt. Eating additional amounts of meat and other high- protein foods may actually make one feel hotter, since more heat is given off by the body after a meal rich in protein than after meals composed primarily of carbohydrates or fats. This heat is useful only for warming the body and thus can add to one's discomfort in hot weather.

It is interesting that vegetarians have been found to have a lower basal metabolic rate (BMR) than meat eaters, perhaps because their diets tend to be lower in protein. Since BMR refers to energy comsumption and heat release during a state of rest, vegetarians can be said to operate at a cooler basic temperature than meat eaters. Tests have shown that this difference may amount to 10 per cent fewer calories for established vegetarians.

The important point that should be emphasized is that a nutritious, balanced die is required whether the day's temperature is cold or hot. The Four Food Groups are good guidelines for achieving a balanced diet:

Milk group — Each adult should have the equivalent of two glasses or more a day while four glasses per day are recommended for adolescents and teenagers.

Meat group — (includes fish, poultry, cheese, beans, peas and nuts) — Two servings are needed every day.

Vegetable and fruit group — Four or more servings are recommended each day. These should include at least one serving of citrus fruits, tomatoes or raw cabbage.

Bread and cereal group — Four servings or more from this group each day are suggested. The use of foods containing enriched flour and whole grains are strongly recommended.

Q. Are there special diet needs for someone who does hard physical work in hot weather?

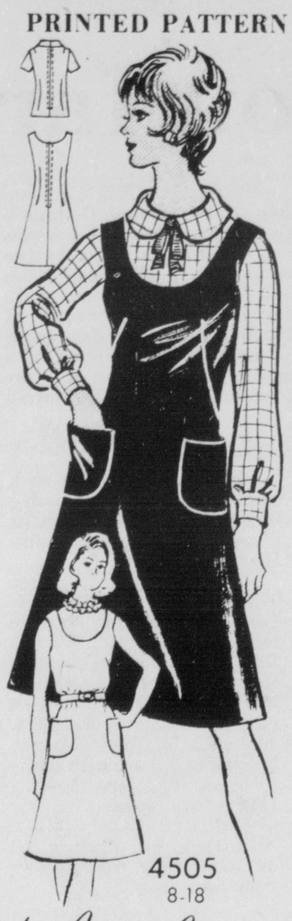

A. No, except that adequate salt and water must be consumed to replace losses from perspiration. Otherwise, the same guidelines for a balanced diet given for the preceeding question should be followed. We should expect, of course, that anyone who exercises or works strenuously burns up a lot of energy. A hard-working man may have to eat twice as much (or more) food than someone who leads a less active life to supply his greater energy needs.

This does not mean that meat or other protein source needs to be increased since exercise has not been shown to affect protein requirement to any great degree. Salt losses may be offset by following the same idea used by some athletes. A tablespoon of salt is added to each gallon of drinking water, which should be drunk in small amounts at frequent intervals throughout the day.

Ann Landers

Driver should not put child on lap

Dear Ann landers: I saw it again today and I promised myself I would not close my eyes tonight until I wrote this letter.

What did I see? A man driving down the highway with a small child on his lap. May I address my remarks to all fathers, uncles or friends who think they are giving the kid a big thrill by "letting him drive." Here is my message:

Dear Manic: The next time you inch by a couple of mangled pieces of steel that once were automobiles, just imagine what would have happened to that child on your lap if you two had been in one of those cars. Sign me --I Love Children

Dear Friend: Thank you for a brief but mighty message. And now I'd like to tell my readers that there are some new, cleverly --designed car seats for young children who are too small for safety belts. Please check with your auto supply dealer today, folks. It could mean the difference between life and death to some precious child.

Dear Ann Landers: A girl recently wrote that her fiance had decided to "clear the air and tell all." He confessed he had slept with about 40 girls before they met. She was shocked and dismayed by his confession and said, "I don't know if I should marry this-man. Will I be forever haunted by those 40 faceless women?"

You told the young woman to accept the fact that her fiance was an immature Casanova, trying to prove himself --and to forget it. You then suggested that she seek counseling if necessary to get it out of her system.

I'm wondering, Ann, whether you would have given the same advice to a young man who wrote to say his bride -to -be had confessed to sleeping with about 40 men before they met? Or would you have said, "Drop that cheap little slut. She will be nothing but trouble."

For too long women have been expected to be virgin brides, but men, well --"boys will be boys," It's time we acknowledged the fact that male promiscuity is just as disgusting and cheapening as female promiscuity and I wish you had said so.

I am not suggesting women be allowed the same sexual freedom that men have traditionally enjoyed in our phony puritanical society, but I do believe that women should stand up and voice their disgust with men who behave like alley cats or dogs on the street. I am for a Single standard and it had better be a high one or there will be no standards at all --for anyone. Are you ready to eat your words, Ann Landers? --Plain Spoken

Dear P.S.: Gulp, gulp.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been engaged to Jim for nearly a year. He received an invitation to a wedding and the reception following the ceremony. The invitation was addressed to him only. I received no invitation. The groom is a very close friend of Jim's and knows we are engaged.

Should Jim go alone, not go at all, or call his friend and ask if he can bring me? Other couples were invited. --Feelings Hurt

Dear Hurt: Considering some of the experiences I've had with the U.S. mails, I would not be at all surprised if your invitation was stuck in a chute somewhere.

Jim should phone his friend and let him know you received no invitation and it must have gone astray. If by chance you were not invited, it's up to Jim to decide what he wants to do. Don't attempt to influence him one way or the other.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism --Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self -addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Women's intercollegiate sports rules changing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — In the space of just the past couple of weeks, the face of women's intercollegiate sports in Pennsylvania has changed completely.

Recruiting, athletic scholarships, summer sports camps and even televised games are either realities or being planned.

The first public word came Friday, when it was learned Penn State had approved as many as 50 athletic scholarships for women starting this fall. Not counting its 100 football grants, Penn state awards about 100 athletic scholarships to men.

While Penn State was deciding about granting scholarships to women, the University of Pittsburgh was recruiting.

And Pitt has been so successful, says basketball coach Sandra Bullman, that "we're going to win a national championship with these girls."

But from the defending national champions, Immaculata College of Malvern, Pa., comes a challenge.

"Tell Pitt to add us to their schedule," said Coach Cathy Rush.

Her teams have complied a 74-4 record the past four seasons.

Her husband Ed, an official in the National Basketball Association for seven years until he switched to the rival American Basketball Bassociation this past season, said Immaculata's following is growing by leaps and bounds.

Rush said next year's team has been scheduled into Madison Square Garden and will play twice in Philadelphia's basketball shrine, the Palestra. And there is more.

"We are very, very close to signing a television contract," Rush said. "The interest is definitely there, and womens basketball will definitely be a major spectator sport in the future."

The rush to financial aid for women athletes and the upgrading of long- neglected women's sports programs around the nation has been prompted by a set of guidelines being drafted by the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It is believed they will call at least for equal opportunities for women athletes in colleges and universities receiving federal funds.

Ignoring the guidelines could mean loss of the federal money.

Penn State, with 10 years of intercollegiate women's athletics behind it, doesn't have as far to go as many schools.

Its assistant athletic director, Della Durant, is a woman.

Its women have an entire building for their program, and they receive an increasingly large share of the athletic budget. The decision to start awarding scholarships, for example, probably adds 50 per cent to this year's estimated intercollegiate expenditures of $40,000 for women.

In contrast, the men's teams, not counting football, spent about $280,000 this year.

"But that's deceptive," said retiring basketball coach Maryann Demitrovitz. "We get all the support, in terms of money, equipment, advice and encouragement, that we need."

Births

POOLE — Mr. and Mrs. Tony Poole, 241 Harry St., are parents of their first child, a daughter, who was born Aug. 7 at 12:24 p.m. in Missouri Delta Community Hospital. The girl weighed seven pounds seven ounces and has been named Lauren Elizabeth.

Mrs. Poole is the former Jo Ann Williamson, daughter of Mrs. Sidney Williamson, 726 E. Gladys St., and the late Sidney Williamson. She is a nurse at Sikeston Convalescent Center. Poole is the son of Mrs. Hildred Patterson of Cathlamet, Wash., and Harold Poole of Pharris Ridge, Sikeston. He will be attending medical school in Mexico beginning in January.

Erma Bombeck column begins

(EDITOR'S NOTE: A new series, "At Wit's End," by Erma Bombeck, started Monday in The Daily Standard. The following short article is about the author of this funny column.)

One day a voice came out of the utility room. It belonged to a housewife from Centerville, Ohio, who found herself with three unplanned children, an educator husband and a dog that giggled when she came out of the shower.

Erma Bombeck, who used to talk to her self a lot, is the authoress of the thrice-weekly humor column, "At Wit's End". It appears in approximately 400 newspapers with a total circulation in excess of 31 million.

Erma began her career as a copy girl on the staff of the Dayton Journal Herald. She worked as a club reporter for a year and was assigned to the women's department for five years.

When the last of her children was in a playpen, she returned to writing via the Kettering- Oakwood Times and a year later was on the editorial pages of the Journal Herald. Within three weeks, editor Glenn Thompson had brought the column to the attention of a syndicate.

A graduate of the University of Daytona, Erma has just authored her third book for Doubleday and conducts a regular column for Good Housekeeping, "Up The Wall". She has also contributed to McCall's and Reader's Digest.

She is a member of Theta Sigma Phi, which awarded her the Headliner Award in 1969, and a member of Sigma Delta Chi, men's journalism fraternity.

Erma Bombeck

Her book, "Just Wait Till You Have Children of Your Own", was awarded the Obianna Award for the best book in humor in 1972. In 1973, she received the coverted Mark Twain Award, which is presented to the top humorist in the nation.

Erma lives in Paradise Valley, Ariz., with her two sons, her educator husband and her dog. ("I have to keep him. He knows too much.")

The authoress has appeared often on television and does a limited number of lectures each year.

Little League football set

The Sikeston Jaycees announce the formation of the Sikeston Jaycee Football Little League. Sponsored by the Bank of Sikeston, The Daily Sikeston Standard, National Lock, and the Sikeston Jaycee's, the new league brings the basics of tackle football to all sixth and seventh grade Sikeston boys, who weigh less than 156 lbs.

The Sikeston Jaycee Little League football is comprised of four teams that play a total of six Saturday afternoon games this fall in Round Robin competition at the V.F.W. Park. The League is limited by the equipment it provides, to 100 boys, or 25 per team, per game.

Of paramount significance in the new league is the fact that every boy who dresses out for a game will play at least one quarter of the game.

All equipment, from helmets to knee pads, will be furnished to the boys. It's all brand new and of highest quality.

The teams are limited to 15 basic offensive plays and 2 basic defenses, and these plays are all specially designed by Sikeston High School football coach Terry Smith and his staff, especially for this new league.

Every game will be run by two uniformed referees, and a doctor will also be in attendance. Practice sessions will be held at the four elementary school playgrounds, and the first league game will be Sept. 21.

There will be no tryouts for the league. All a boy has to do to qualify is to bring one parent or guardian to registration on August 17, at the Sikeston High School cafeteria. The hours of registration are 9-12 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. Rules and bylaws of the league will be given out at registration to each boy, and the teams will be determined by a random drawing soon after registration day.

Each boy must purchase insurance at registration that will cost $4.50 to $5.50 per boy.

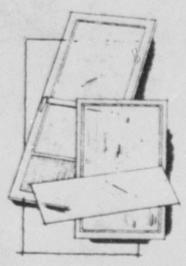

Any adult who desires to be a coach in this new league should contact Charles Blumenburg at 471-5451 or Rob Mitchell at 471-0538 as soon as possible.

Again, to be eligible, the following requirements must be met by each boy:

1. Sixth or seventh grade in the Sikeston Public School System.
2. Not weigh more than 155 lbs.
3. Purchase the insurance required by the league.
4. A desire to learn good basic fundaments of tackle football.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia's entry in the North American Hockey League will be known as the Philadelphia Firebirds, it was announced Monday.

The team will play a 74-game schedule, opening at home Oct. 18.

WARSAW (AP) — Balazs Taroczy of Hungary won the European Amateur Tennis Championship Monday in Wroclaw, Southern Poland.

He beat the favored Alex Metreveli of the Soviet Union 6-2, 10-8, 2-6, 4-6, 6-4.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers announced Monday that they had returned veteran relief pitcher Dick Selma to Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League.

Selma was obtained from that club two weeks ago, but had been unimpressive with the Brewers in two appearances.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Enzo Hernandez of the San Diego Padres has been named the latest National League Player of the Week award winner.

Charles S. Feeney, league president, announced the honor today. The Padres' shortstop had a .450 batting average last week with nine hits in five games from Aug. 5 through Aug. 11.

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Steve Corbett, the New England Patriots' top National Football League draft choice, should be completely recovered in two or three weeks after surgery at Newton-Wellesley Hospital, his physician says.

Dr. Francis Rocket said some scar tissue was removed from Corbett's shoulder during the four-hour operation.

Veterans begin 'cooling off'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"It was a long drawn-out strike," said Buffalo guard Reggie McKenzie, "and our side lost."

That was one reaction Monday as National Football League players drifted into training camps across the country under provisions of a 14-day cooling off period decided on by the players association.

Everyone is supposed to report to camp by Wednesday, negotiations with the owners are to resume Thursday and if an agreement isn't reached in two weeks, everyone is supposed to walk out again.

McKenzie wasn't the only one unhappy with the plan which the players say was suggested by chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr.

"If I said I was happy about the way we're going in, I'd be lying," said Washington defensive tackle Diron Talbert.

Offensive tackle Dick Himes Green Bay added, "This could be the worst thing that could happen at a time like this. Nothing's settled. This could be ruinous to team unity. We're going in without a contract signed and we're no better off than we were a year ago.'

Meanwhile, rookies and free agents continued to display their talents in three Monday night games. The Pittsburgh Steelers bombed the Chicago Bears 50-21, the Cleveland Browns edged the San Francisco 49ers 21-20 and the Buffalo Bills beat the Kansas City Chiefs 35-21.

Some veterans were pleased with the plan to return to action. But the Minnesota Vikings were the most reluctant warriors in the league. About 33 decided to ignore the players association plan and remain on strike for at least another week.

Some coaches were skeptical or downright hostile to the plan and others delighted to get their best players back.

"I'm very unexcited about it. I don't think Mr. Usery knows much about football," said San Diego Coach Tommy Prothro.

"I think they should come in with the idea of staying in or they shouldn't come in at all," commented Kansas City head man Hank Stram. "I don't like the indecisiveness of the matter. It's not good for anybody concerned."

In Houston there was a difference of opinion between Coach Sid Gillman and owner Bud Adams.

"I'm not about to take a veteran back under those conditions," declared Gillman after hearing of the cooling off period. "All it would do is disrupt our camp. To come in and then maybe walk out two weeks later is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of."

But Adams declined to bar players from the Oilers' camp.

In Monday night's action, Joe Gilliam, in relief of starting quarterback Terry Bradshaw, threw for three touchdowns and ran for a fourth. Chicago gained just five yards on offense in the entire first half. A crowd of 42,325 was on hand in Pittsburgh.

Will Cureton hooked up with Steve Holden on an 80-yard touchdown play in the final seconds and Chris Gartner booted the extra point to give Cleveland the victory before only 24,008 fans in Cleveland. More than 65,000 fans attended last year.

Rookie Gary Marangi threw two touchdown passes and veteran Joe Ferguson threw one in Buffalo's victory. The game was played before 39,248 fans in Kansas City.

Seabaugh remains Tiger

Quarterback Bill Seabaugh, who led the Cape Girardeau Central Tigers to two SEMO conference championships his junior and senior years has signed a letter -of -intent to attend the University of Missouri according to Tiger coach Al Onofrie.

Onofrio plans to use Seabaugh as a slotback, defensive back, and quarterback. Bill is 6 -2 and weighs 180 pounds. He also was a fine student at Cape Central High School and was selected to the Daily Standard all -academic basketball for the past two seasons.

The Tigers also announced the signing of Thomas McBride a fullback from Springfield, Ill. McBride also plays defensive end and weighs 220 pounds and is 6-2. He is a 9.8 sprinter and is the cousin of Ron McBride, former fullback of the Tigers and Bake McBride of the St. Louis Baseball Cardinals.

Sikeston dominates tournament

Bob Fields and Ken Anderson of Sikeston defeated Tom Daughtee and Terry Schott of Charleston Saturday night 6- 4, 6 -0, and 6 -4 to win the men's doubles finals. Earlier, Judy Bowman of Sikeston and Chris Groves of Cape Girardeau beat Bonnie Conn and Jan Matthews of Sikeston 6 -0, 6 -1, and 6 -1 to take the women's championship.

Ronnie Zilafro of East Prairie won the men's singles and Bonnie Conn won the women's singles finals.

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — New York Yankee greats Mickey Mantle and Whitey Ford were inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame, along with former umpire Jocko Conlan, Negro League star "Cool Papa" Bell, Sam Thompson and "Sunny Jim" Bottomley. Thompson and Bottomley were honored posthumously.

Godby card star

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals continue to lead baseball's snug National League East by about the length of Danny Godby's bat.

And the crack of the longtime minor league outfielder's tool in trade may have accounted Monday night for more than a 6-5 victory over the San Diego Padres.

"Little things are what win ball games and pennants," observed Cards captain Joe Torre after Godby singled and scored in the 13th to end a marathon of 4 hours and 3 minutes.

Striding to the plate for a first time in the majors, he drilled a Laxton fast ball up the middle leading off.

Jack Heidemann laid down a sacrifice to move Godby to second, then came the move that both Schoendienst and Torre praised.

Godby, instead of holding, broke fast and was half way to third when Padres shortstop Enzo Hernandez fielded Lou Brock's slow infield hit.

The advance prompted the Padres to walk Ted Sizemore a fifth time, and Bake McBride followed with a long sacrifice fly to center field.

"When he saw the ball come off the bat he realized he could make it," said Torre, who called Godby's dash to third instinctive.

"I had a pretty good jump," Godby explained. "If the ball had been hit hard, though, I was going to stay on second."

The auspicious debut was particularly heartening to Godby, whose run kept the Cardinals 1½ games ahead of the Philadelphia Phillies in the East Division.

"I'd been kicking around the minors so long I wondered if I'd ever get up here," he conceded. "I don't think anyone can realize how good that hit felt."

The Cards' winner in relief was left-hander Al Hrabosky, 61, who pitched 4 1-3 hitless innings to outdistance the Padres' Laxton and starter Bill Greif.

"We got outstanding pitching," remarked San Diego Manager John McNamara. "It's just a shame we had to waste it on a night when we couldn't score more runs."

Ryan sets strikeout mark

ANAHEIM (AP) — On Sept. 15, 1969, Nolan Ryan, a New York Mets pitcher, watched Steve Carlton, then of the St. Louis Cardinals, establish a major league record by striking out 19 New York Mets.

On April 22, 1970, Ryan saw Tom Seaver of the Mets equal Carlton's record against the San Diego Padres.

On Monday night at Anaheim Stadium, Ryan watched with something resembling bemusement as he etched his name into baseball's record book with a 19- strikeout performance.

"I guess I'm the only guy in the world to have seen all three of them," Ryan drawled in his Texas twang after his performance defeated the Boston Red Sox 4-2.

"I've always felt that if all the conditions were right and everything fell into place that I might have a chance at the record," he observed matter - of- factly as he gazed into the sea of inquiring reporters after the game.

"I really wasn't thinking much about the record until I noticed something on the scoreboard in the seventh or eighth inning," he said.

Elsewhere in the American League, Detroit thumped Kansas City 5-1, Oakland edged the New York Yankees 3-2, and Milwaukee beat Texas 5-1.

Ryan threw 170 pitches - 115 of them for strikes - as he won his 15th game of the year. He erased the unhappy memory of his last start when he held the Chicago White Sox hitless for 8 1–3 innings before blowing the third no-hitter of his strikeout - studded career and eventually lost the game 2-1.

Sixteen of the strikeouts were swinging.

Although he only tied the major league single- game strikeout record, Ryan did succeed in erasing the hallowed name of Bob Feller from the American League record book. Feller had the old AL mark of 18 strikeouts in a nine- inning game.

Ryan also tied Luis Tiant's major league standard of 32 strikeouts in consecutive games.

Ryan said he still considers his two no-hitters of last season a greater achievement than his 19 strikeouts of Monday night.

Tigers 5, Royals 1

Rookie Ron Leflore's two- run homer keyed a three- run third inning against Nelson Briles and sparked Detroit over Kansas City.

Michkey Lolich, 13-14, scattered five hits for Detroit as the Tigers snapped Kansas City's winning streak at three games.

A's 3, Yankees 2

Jim "Catfish" Hunter notched his 17th victory of the season with a five- hitter, pitching Oakland over New York.

The A's won the game on a pair of unearned runs in the eighth inning scored on an error by Yankee third baseman Graig Nettles.

Brewers 5, Rangers 1

George Scott's two- run single and Darrell Porter's two- run double helped Milwaukee beat Texas. Jim Colborn, 7-10, and Tom Murphy combined to stop Texas on five hits.

National League scores: Philadelphia 4, San Francisco 1; New York 3, Los Angeles 1; Pittsburgh 7, Cincinnati 4; St. Louis 6, San Diego 5, 13 innings.

Hanlon posts Ace

DELTA --John L. Hanlon of Delta became eligible to win a free trip to Scotland and $1,000 as a result of scoring a hole -in -one at the Sikeston Country Club. Hanlon's ace qualified him for the annual Rusty Nail Hole -In -One Sweepstakes, a national competition sponsored by the Drambuie Company of Edinburgh, Scotland.

The winner will be announced early next year.

Baker fourth

Windy Baker, 13 -year old free style swimmer, was the only member of the Sikeston swim team to place in the Cape Girardeau All -American City trophy meet recently.

Baker placed fourth in her division as Sikeston competed against teams from Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee and Missouri.

Dr. Jean R. Dupont, coach of the Sikeston team, related that the two teams that dominated the meet had facilities for year round swimming and noted his backing for the discussed Sikeston Public School --city of Sikeston indoor pool.

Sikeston will host an invitational meet at the Country club pool later this month or early Sept.

To the Editor:

One may need to express patriotic fervor by insulting the USSR. However, I feel that the caption "Soviet Union gets first sex manuel" printed next to a photo of Rudy the Gorilla in prostate position, (7-31-74) is rather provocative.

Dear Mr. Blanton:

On behalf of the Sikeston Area Vocational School and the Building Trades Class, I want to thank you for having such a cooperative news staff. The articles and picture were outstanding. I also want to thank you for the advertisements that were well done and the rush job on printing the programs.

It is efforts and interest like this that help make school projects a success. The community needs more people like you are willing to go that extra mile to make a school project a success.

Sincerely,

"DISQUALIFY"
William ("Milkfund") Hungate

Rep. Hungate did not return his "milkfund" "take" until he was "exposed" of his crime. Now, Hungate sits in "judgement" and jokes about impeachment. How "empty" can a man get?? How fatuous can "justice" be??????

Rep. William (Milkfund) Hungate "pocketed" his milkfund "bribe" then allowed his (158) labor "puppets" to beat President Nixon to collapse, for the same greedy bribery Hungate is "guilty" of himself??? How can you vote for such ambiguity? Impeachment of a President is more serious than lynching a man, because, labor "Beholden" (Hungate) Democrats will change our government, yet, Hungate, like a "yo-yo" on Meany's string, jokes about it, he, thinks impeachment is farcical. Hungate "favors" labor legislation, instead of what is good for America as a "whole".

Mr. J. Harris
St. Louis, Mo.

DO YOU KNOW YOUR CONGRESSMAN?
July 31? 1974

Dear Editor:

Sources in Washington have reported the abuse of federal funds, and the U.P.I. has verified the story, that H.E.W. funds are being used for induced abortions. Sixteen states are now using Title XIX funds (Medicaid) for abortions. In other words, those of us who do not believe in abortion are paying for them anyway, through our federal taxes.

On June 27, 1974 an amendment to stop the use of federal funds for abortion was defeated by a vote of 2 to 1: 247 Representatives voted "no" and 123 voted "yes". Our own Congressman from the 10th District, Bill Burlison, voted for the continuation of the federal funding.

In a letter from Mr. Burlison dated July 17, 1974, he states, "As you have been previously advised, and as indicated in the enclosed, my position has not been finally determined on the difficult overall issue of abortion."

We ask Mr. Burlison, "How long does it take a man to decide if killing 1½ million unborn babies a year is right or wrong?"

Will we continue to elect men for high office who will not work toward stopping the inhumane practice of abortion? Our legislators had better believe WE WILL NOT!! We will weed them out, one by one, until we have men and women in Washington who work for the well being of all mankind.

Yours truly
Stella Hulshof
Portageville, Mo.

Dear Editor:

You may have a picture to accompany the enclosed editorial regarding John A. Wright which was written by Joe Brown, Stoddard County Historical Society Publicity Chairman. Mr. Wright died July 2, 1974.

This article is being mailed to all daily papers in the area.

Harold Lemar, Treasurer
Stoddard County Historical Society

Imaginative educator --able teacher--efficient administrator --active Free Mason -- respected member of the Stoddard County Historical Society --these and other equally important and honorable words have been righly used to describe the life and work of John A. Wright.

What some may have over-looked are the simple, humane qualities of the man.

Many, especially some of his former pupils, might be inclined to remember John A. as a stern man. They recall that he whipped kids --that he shook them up --that he was a demanding taskmaster. To many a student called into the office he must have looked as fierce as the very devil himself, and they all knew he kept in his desk drawer, a big, long shoe sole. It is told all over Stoddard County that it came off one of Joe Brown's old shoes. Joe wore size 14EEE. That story surely is not so, because I saw Joe, alive and kicking, only a few days ago on the streets of Bloomfield. Had it been one of Joe's shoe soles, I'm sure he would have been done in long ago by one of John's, "victims" just for supplying the deadly weapon.

Beneath this rock-like exterior there was a warm, witty, story-telling, philosophical person. The truth is John A. was really one of the kindest of men! This writer has heard several of John A's former supposed "victims" relate how, upon being called into the office and after a long heart-to-heart talk, John A., dragging out the old shoe sole, would say, "All right, holler real loud now", and beat the devil out of the desk!

John A. loved the truth! He hated a lie because at a fairly early age he found out, the hard way, that lying didn't pay.

A student caught lying got the shoe sole!

John A loved a diligent student --not necessarily the brilliant one, but the one who really tried. He hated the slothful, dilatory pupil, because John almost missed an education himself and only at the last moment, so to speak, was prodded into getting one and came to realize its value.

Slackers often got the shoe sole!

John A. loved history, though he is probably best remembered in the field of mathematics. During his retirement years, though disabled, he restored several family heirlooms and other "antiques" and, despite his handicap, supported the work and aims of the Historical Society --contributing among other things a discussion of the history of the development of the educational system in Stoddard County, a subject on which he was the undisputed authority.

Here was a great man who might have been greater; though justly proud of his achievements after so slow and late a start, he never reached his potential --and he knew it! For him, the beginning was too late --the preparation too meager.

If he seemed impatient --if he seemed fierce --if he appeared to be over-bearing -- it wasn't because that was his nature. Rather it was because he wanted these later generations to get the early start he didn't get-- to have the preparation he didn't have --that they might come nearer realizing their full capabilities. John A. was doing his job in that inimitable way of his --never beating around the bush, always meeting the challenge head on -- all for the betterment of the rest of us.

John Athol Wright, a man whose life seemed full of paradox, wasn't, as some may have thought, mad at the world; rather, he dearly loved the world.

Strikes

I heartily endorse your editorial, "Eight Who Voted Against Taxpayers." The employer has only one vote, but all of his employes can help perpetuate a politician in office to the harm of the people. No striker should be entitled to food stamps or any remuneration he has not earned.

Any striker comes out a loser, because if he is off his job even a short time, the increase he gets will never make up for the loss in pay he sustained while on strike, and his increase in pay is passed on to increases on consumer products.

I believe that all strikes affecting national welfare in any way should be forbidden by law. Any local strike should not be permitted to spread to other towns and states, and wildcat strikers should be penalized by heavy fines for their unions.

There was a need for unions when they first started but they have outlived their usefullness. We should now have compulsory abritration to settle differences.

Dear Editor:

When reading the July 27, 1974 Daily Standard, it was with utter disgust that I read the joke on page 2 in column 8 concerning the elephant with a Beatle haircut. I feel that you owe an apology to the readers for having printed such trash. If you have nothing better to print, then I must find something better to read.

18-year-old rights and consumer laws will become effective today

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Several New laws designed to protect the consumer and a bill extending full majority rights to 18-year-olds take effect today.

Beginning today, persons aged 18 or over can make loans, grant loans, sue and be sued, enter into contracts, serve on juries and do just about everything that adults can -except buy and possess alcoholic beverages.

Over 100 new laws, approved in the 1974 legislative session, go into effect today.

Some, such as a new law regulating abortions, already are in effect because of emergency clauses. Others, such as repeal of the personal property tax on household goods, won't take effect until 1975.

Some others, such as increased aid to junior colleges and aid to dependent children, were vetoed and will be considered in a 10-day veto session beginning Sept. 4.

Also going into effect in June, because of an emergency clause, was a bill saying that a sales tax does not have to be paid on finance charges. The bill also exempts from the sales tax all sales made to private institutions of higher education.

Gov. Christopher S. Bond vetoed 18 bills. During the 1974 session, 138 bills were passed. Bond also vetoed 6.2 million from nearly $1 billion in state funds to be spent in the current fiscal year. Federal and other sources made up the rest of the state's $2 billion budget.

The law giving full adult rights to 18-year-olds has been threatened with suits from people who do not want 18-year-olds to serve on juries and who question whether fathers will now be required to provide child support for children over 18. Many 18-year-olds are still in high school.

In other states where laws were passed lowering the age for adult privileges, courts have held that child support can continue beyond the age of 18 if child support already has been granted.

Legislators say judges can still exercise discretion in awarding child support.

One law in a strong consumer-interest package repeals the holder-in-due course doctrine whereby a contract for a health spa, for example, was sold to a bank and the consumer had to continue making payments to the bank after the health spa went out of business.

Under the new law, a consumer has 90 days in which to cancel the contract and the financial institution would be responsible for making good on the contract.

The mechanics lien law also was revised so that contractors must give a customer notice that he or she has a right to request a lien waiver to protect themselves against the possibilities the contractor will fail to pay for labor and supplies.

In the past, a contractor could pave a driveway, for example, and the consumer would be billed for the cement without knowing beforehand that he would be liable for payment.

Another new law will outlaw pyramid sales schemes whereby a person is inducted to invest money, part of which the original investors keep.

It now will be illegal for a store to deny a credit card to a woman.

Pay increases were approved for numerous county officials, highway patrolmen and members of the state Public Service Commission. Eight pay raise bills for elected officials in St. Louis and their employes, and pay increases for judges, were vetoed.

A revision of the workmen's compensation laws also goes into effect. The law raises the maximum weekly compensation from $70 to $95 a person.

A sweeping plan to give aid to public hospitals and to set up a program to improve maternal health care goes into effect, but it has not been funded.

Hospitals could qualify for state aid up to one-tenth of the local hospital taxing effort.

Resorts anywhere in the state now can get licenses to sell liquor by the drink. The privilege had been restricted to resorts on the Lake of the Ozarks and Table Rock Lake. The new law is not designed to interfere with local option licensing of smaller establishments.

A resort is defined as an establishment with 40 rooms with a restaurant getting at least 60 per cent of its income from food services; or a restaurant, without lodging, which has produced gross food sales of $100,000 annually in the previous two years.

A new law also allows excursion boats on the Mississippi River to sell liquor by the drink.

—Increase penalties for income and sales tax evasion to a maximum $10,000 fine and up to five years in prison.

—Provide that health insurance policies automatically afford coverage for newborns.

—Allow Missouri to participate in a multistate tax compact so joint audits can be performed by 21 states on taxes of large, multistate corporations.

—Allow cities and counties to set up port authorities.

—Require proof that taxes have been paid on each vehicle before it can be registered.

—Make it a misdemeanor for any employer who promises in writing to make payments to an employe retirement plan and then fails to do so.

—Repeal some state laws setting specific standards for soft drink containers and provide that regulations for such containers be drafted by the state Division of Health.

—Provide stiffer penalties, up to a $50,000 fine, and give the attorney general broader investigative powers under the antitrust law.

—Regulate use of pesticides in compliance with a federal law.

—Regulate creation of new bank holding companies. Experts on the law say, however, it will not effectively curb the growth of holding companies.

No results changed after vote canvass

NEW MADRID — A canvass Monday of the New Madrid County Democratic and Republican primary election returns failed to change unofficial results announced earlier, according to County Clerk Jesse H. Wilkins, who said some minor errors had been made in posting votes on the precinct tally sheets.

In Anderson one precinct at Gideon, O. D. "Ode" Henning, county treasurer candidate, received 72 votes and not 92 as first reported, which reduced his total votes to 1,698 or 271 votes over H. H. "Bud" Townsend who pilled 1,427.

In the same precinct Thomas F. Eagleton, candidate for U. S. Senator, received 109 votes rather than 119. In Anderson precinct two at Gideon, Linus E. Young, inactive candidate on the ballot for recorder of deeds, polled 48 votes, or 10 more than first reported.

W. A. "Dub" Scobey, candidate for county collector received 54 votes or five less than first reported in Como precinct three at Risco. Shirley LaPlant, county treasurer candidate, received one vote and not two as reported in Lewis precinct three at Howardville.

There was a tie for Republican committeman in LaFont township when Harry Lewis received one write-in vote in precinct one at Marston and John Klipfel received one write- in vote in precinct three at Conran.

ADC is biggest share of family service funds

NEW MADRID — Funds totaling $222,000.68 were paid out in July by the New Madrid County Welfare Department, with the greatest part of that amount going to aid for dependent children, according to figures released by Mrs. Laverne Hadder, office director.

A total of 907 county families with 2,245 children received $112,013 for aid to dependent children or an average of $123.50 per family check.

State supplemental payments of $21,118 were received by 792 persons, who also received federal supplemental security income. State supplemental payments only in the amount of $6,645 were paid to 172 persons.

A total of 752 persons were eligible for Medicaid benefits from the state. These persons are on the supplemental security income rolls but do not receive a cash grant.

General relief funds totaling $14,022 were paid to 212 families consisting of 223 persons for an average check of $62.88 per person.

Medical assistance was given to 56 persons who did not receive a cash check but are eligible for Medicaid benefits.

Supplemental aid to the blind in the amount of $707 was paid to seven persons.

Nursing care payments in the amount of $5,143 were received by 30 persons. A total of $60,767.88 was expended for hospital and nursing home programs.

Services were given to 83 children under child welfare supervision. The New Madrid County Court provided $792.40 and a matching amount was received from state boarding funds for room and board, clothing, medicine, dental care and incidentals for the children.

Food stamp coupons valued at $210,050, of which $120,807 were bonus coupons, were received by 1,817 households consisting of 6,216 persons during May.

Escapees include man from Morley

LEWISBURG , Pa. (AP) -- State police continued their search today in the thick woods of Bald Eagle State Forest for four inmates who escaped from Lewisburg Federal Penitentiary on Saturday morning.

Police said they did not know whether the four were armed but termed them "dangerous" The escapees included a former Green Beret serving a 45 -year term for skyjacking.

It is believed the men are hiding in the dense and mountainoius woodlands of the state park located some 20 miles from the prison in southwestern Union County.

State and local police were joined by the FBI Saturday after the men made their way to freedom by commandeering a garbage truck inside the prison and driving away under a hail of gunfire from the guard towers, crashing through two locked, chain -link gates.

Authorities identified the four as: Richard R. McCoy Jr., 31, of Provo, Utah, convicted of hihacking a United Airlines jet in 1972 after bailing out with $500,000 ranson; Joseph Havel, 60, of Philadelphia; Larry L. Bagley, 36, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Melvin D. Walker, 35, of Morley, Mo.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Aug. 13, the 225th day of 1974. There are 140 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1521, the Spanish conqueror, Hernando Cortez, captured Mexico City from the Aztec Indians.

On this date:

In 1688, King William's War began when Indians attacked North Yarmouth, Maine.

In 1848, the American flag was first raised in Los Angeles.

In 1898, during the Spanish-American War, Spain surrendered the Philippine city of Manila to the United States.

In 1930, a new aviation speed record was established when Capt. Fank Hawks flew from Los Angeles to New York in 12 hours, 25 minutes.

In 1937, the Japanese attacked Shanghai, China.

In 1961, East Germany sealed off the border between East and West Berlin by closing the Brandenburg Gate.

Ten years ago: The U.S. Senate voted against further American aid to Indonesia until the Indonesian dispute with neighboring Malaysia was settled.

Five years ago: President Nixon bestowed the nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom, upon Astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin Aldrin and Michael Collins after their historic moon landing.

One year ago: President Nixon signed a $23-billion highway bill, permitting, for the first time, the use of funds of the Federal Highway Trust Fund for mass transit.

Today's birthdays: Cuba's Fidel Castro is 49 years old. Movie director Alfred Hitchcock is 75.

Thought for today: Anger is momentary madness. So control your passion or it will control you — Horace, Roman poet and satirist, 65-8 B-C.

EMPLOYEE GARDENS – BEFORE . . . AND AFTER

The picture above shows a strip of farm land in Pennsylvania which Rodale Press, the magazine publisher, decided to offer to those of its employees without garden space of their own. The company paid to plow the land, and divide it into 25 plots. The rest was up to the employees — to do with as they wished. RCA, near Princeton, New Jersey, provided similar facilities to its employees.

Pictured above is the same piece of ground photographed from the same angle several months later, and the experiment was considered a huge success. Other companies can do the same without much cost or effort — and it's a benefit the employees really appreciate. All it takes is a piece of spare ground, and a responsible leader with the enthusiasm to supervise the project.

The most famous community garden system in the world is undoubtedly that practiced in Great Britain, where tens of thousands of people rent garden plots from local authorities, corporations and nationalized industries in order to grow bountiful harvests of fresh vegetables and beautiful flowers.

In America it is estimated that 30,000,000 more people would garden if they had the land, and recent surveys have shown that there is a tremendous interest among these people in community gardens.

Community gardens are also popular in Holland, Germany, Denmark and France. Many not only have an area for growing vegetables but they include lawns and flower beds, plus a small summerhouse for relaxing.

FIRST native-born Spanish-American Roman Catholic archbishop in the American church, the Rev. Robert Sanchez was consecrated in Albuquerque, N.M.

Deaths

FLOYD M. HAWES

Floyd M. Hawes, 83, of Route Three, a retired farmer, died at 8:40 a.m. today in Sikeston Convalescent Center.

He was born July 1, 1891 in Cobden, Ill.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Mary Hawes of the home; one son, Clyde Hawes of Sikeston; one stepson, John Nickens of Chaffee; one daughter, Mrs. Mary Emma Riddle of Advance; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Mills of Memphis,Tenn., Mrs. Opal DeLong of Detroit, Mich., and Mrs. Ruby Walbert of Moro, Ore.; and seven grandchildren and 10 great - grandchildren.

Friends may call after noon Wednesday at Nunnelee Funeral Chapel.

At noon Thursday the body will be moved to First Christian Church, where services are scheduled at 2 p.m. The Rev. Paul Walker will officiate.

Burial will be in Garden of Memories Cemetery.

GUY VINES

BLOOMFIELD --Pallbearers at services today for Guy Vines, 73, who died Saturday, were Burl D. Vines, Sammy Vines, Tommy Lee Vines, Robin Ried, Keith Warf and Larry Hamilton.

WINFORD M. BENNETT

EAST PRAIRIE --Services for Winford Melvin Bennett, 52, a former resident who died Sunday at Pontiac, Mich., are scheduled at 2 p.m. Wednesday in Shelby Funeral Home. The Revs. Billy Adkisson, pastor of the Cape Girardeau Freewill Baptist Church, and Bill Porter, pastor of the East Prairie Church of God, will officiate.

Burial will follow in East Prairie Memorial Park Cemetery.

Madrid earns third star for betterment

NEW MADRID --The third star in the Missouri Community Betterment five -star program was received today by the city in the category of utilities, according to Mrs. Dot Halstead, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Community Betterment Committee.

To qualify for the star the city had to meet the standards for public water supply, city sewer system and for street lighting.

The water supply received final approval from the Missouri Division of Health and the city has been issued an effluent standards permit by the Missouri Clean Water Commission.

Approval of the street lighting system, the third phase in the utilities criteria, entitles the city to display the third star on the community betterment signs at the entrance to New Madrid.

Buz Southerland, of Jefferson City, Southeast Missouri Community Betterment specialist, made the third star presentation to the Community Betterment Committee.

The other two stars awarded earlier to the city were in the areas of education and community planning.

Areas remaining to achieve five -star status for the city include transportation and community services.

Mrs. Halstead said this year's Community Betterment program scrapbook was sent to Jefferson City Monday to be judged along with others from towns with a population of 2,500 to 5,000.

Tools stolen

Thieves took $300 worth of assorted tools from a pickup truck at the Rodney Bridger home, 817 Cambridge Drive, and an undetermined amount of change from four Daily Standard newspaper vending machines.

Bridger reported the theft Monday morning and told police the thieves broke open a locked box on the back of his pickup while it was parked at his home. The tools were kept in the box.

The newspaper vending machines were broken into Monday night or early this morning at locations in the Quick Sak Grocery, 110 Branum Ave.; Sterling Store, 105 -107 N. New Madrid St.; Lindsey's M and H Supermarket, 863 W. Malone Ave.; and the Big K store on S. Kingshighway

Thieves pried open the machines to get to the coin boxed. An undetermined amount of money was taken.

Herbert Yancy, 208 Harry St., told police Monday he had $75 worth of metric calibrated tools stolen Friday from a tent in City Park.

He said the tools were in an Army Backpack in the back of the tent.

Yancy said he left the park at 2 p.m., and when he returned at 8 p.m., the tools were gone.

conciliation, compromise and cooperation."

But the applause was noticeably louder from Ford's fellow Republicans, than from the majority Democrats, when the President pledged to fight for a balanced budget while maintaining a strong defense.

"It's going to be quite a trick to balance the budget by fiscal 1976, and not cut the Pentagon budget," said Sen. Phillip A. Hart, D-Mich.

Holley was born Sept. 29, 1909 in Mississippi to the late John and Minnie Holley.

On Nov. 1, 1935, he married Ruby M. Baker, who survives.

The family has lived in Portageville for 35 years.

Other survivors include two brothers, Harold Holley of Memphis, Tenn., and Dewey Holley of Farmington.

Friends may call at H. S. Smith Funeral Home in Caruthersville until Wednesday morning when the body will be moved to First Baptist Church in Portageville for visitation after 10 a.m.

Services are scheduled in the church at 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Revs. Richard Adams and Owen Sherrill officiating.

Burial will be in Portageville Cemetery.

election in doubt since each of the challenged ballots were voted by a qualified voter properly registered in Mississippi County.

The petition further stated that there is a possibility of human error in the counting of each and every ballot cast in the race for presiding judge of the county and in each voting precinct of Mississippi County and that, due to the closeness of the results of the race for said office, there could be a sufficient number of mistakes to place in doubt the result of the nomination contested.

Winchester requested the Court to order a recount of each vote cast in the election for presiding judge and order each challenged and uncounted absentee ballot be included and counted.

developed the work road to the dry area of the landfill because of large sand pockets. The timber needed clearing away and a retention pond had not been constructed below the site.

Roberts said he informed Waters he would accept a proposal if it went by the engineer's plans and also needed a time table saying when the projects would be completed. Roberts said he did not receive a reply from the letter, although Judge Lankford said he had sent one.

The last investigation of the landfill was made July 26 by inspectors Jack Painter and Jim Huck of the Missouri Division of Health at Poplar Bluff. Roberts said it was indicated at that time by the inspectors that the landfill was not being operated by the approved plans.

According to Roberts, the men stated that it was their opinion that it was almost physically impossible to correct the situation. Roberts then sent another letter to Lankford explaining the situation and advised him that the landfill could no longer stay in operation unless the court could demonstrate how it could bring the landfill to comply with the law.

Roberts said it was preferred that the engineer make a proposal on how the problem could be corrected and submit it to the Division of Health for approval. He said the court would be given a reasonable amount of time to correct the situation, as long as it showed it was trying.

But if the court fails to do this, the landfill will be shut down.

Monday, during the meeting between state inspectors, and the County Court, the judges were defensive about the problem. The judges asked why the inspectors wanted to be hard on them when Mississippi County did not have a site approved.

Judge Lankford told Roberts that Monday was a bad day at the landfill and that on days it rained it was impossible to cover the refuse.

Roberts said this was not a correct statement because it had been demonstrated and proved that it could be covered regardless of rain. He said Scott County was not the only county with a landfill problem.

"Our landfill is clean enough to have a fish fry ...with no flies," said Eldon Ziegenhorn, first district associate judge.

When Judge Lankford asked for an approved sanitary landfill site Roberts informed him that Lemonds sanitary landfill north of Dexter was meeting state requirements.

Fire marshal has no cause for fire

PORTAGEVILLE --Louis Gray, a representative of the state fire marshal's office in Jefferson City, said Monday he had been unable at this time to determine the cause of an early Friday morning fire which destroyed a garage and two cars at the home of Leon Sallwaechter, 111 E. Sixth St.

Gray has cited arson as the cause of a major fire on Aug. 3 which leveled six public housing units and damaged four others under consturction at the intersection of First and Huffman streets.

Stoddard County looks for ambulance drivers

BLOOMFIELD — How and where to obtain volunteer ambulance attendants and the training of volunteers were the main topics of discussion at the Monday night meeting of the Stoddard County Ambulance District, held in the Circuit Courtroom.

The 81- hour training course required for all ambulance attendants will begin Aug. 19 at the Sikeston Vocational School. The class will meet Monday and Wednesday nights from 6 to 9 o'clock and cost of the course will be $15.

Three Rivers Junior College at Poplar Bluff will offer a course beginning Aug. 28. The class will meet from 6 to 9 p.m. on Wednesdays. The cost will be $45 per semester or a total of $90 for the two - semester course.

According to Chairman Jack Smarr of Dexter, registered nurses or doctors will not be required to take the course. However, licensed practical nurse training will not be acceptable and LPN volunteers will be required to complete the course.

Volunteers who wish to begin the ambulance training course should contact Jack Smarr at Dexter, Ray Coats at Bernie, Bill Peopplemeyer at Bloomfield, Wesley Cowan at Essex, David Cummings at Advance or John Roach at Puxico. All fees and mileage expenses to and from the school site will be paid for by the district.

The board of trustees discussed at length volunteer personnel versus salaried personnel and determined it would be impossible to hire enough salaried personnel with the expected income of the district.

The board then decided to run an ad in the three daily newspapers asking for volunteers. Each board member will also seek volunteers in his own district by appealing to local civic and service clubs.

The possibilities of starting the ambulance service district using only one of the four allotted ambulances were discussed and it was decided that if this should occur, the ambulance would be based at Advance. The cities of Dexter, Bernie and Puxico already have an ambulance service in operation.

In other action, the board voted to accept the district's bylaws. Contents of the bylaws state that Bloomfield will be the district's principal office, the regular meeting will be held the second and fourth Mondays of each month, and the directors shall be elected by registered voters on the first Tuesday in April of each year, with the next election to be held in April of 1975 at which time two directors will be elected. It further states that the district's fiscal year will begin Jan. 1 and end Dec. 31, and that at an annual meeting an election of officers will be held at 7:30 p.m. on the second Monday of June each year.

Ray Coats of Bernie and Jack Smarr of Dexter will meet Thursday night to complete plans for ambulance service fees.

Pair gets suspended sentence

Two persons received suspended jail sentences today in Magistrate Cou t proceedings in the Sikeston City Courtroom, and three other persons appeared on charges of possessing marijuana.

Dora Ethel Johnson, Route Four, received a six -month suspended sentence for driving while intoxicated and another six -month suspended sentence for driving with revoked license. She was placed on probation for two years.

Jimmy W. Powers, 334 Sunset Drive, was given a 30 -day suspended sentence for nonsupport. He also received two years on probation.

The marijuana possession cases included: Ronald Joe Yant, 312 Selma St., continued to Sept. 10; Danny Boese of Illmo, pleaded guilty; sentencing deferred to Aug. 12, 1975; and Tharon Kennedy of Allenville, continued to Aug. 20.

Charles David Howard, Route Two, was arraigned on a charge of felonious assault stemming from an Aug. 2 incident in which he allegedly tried to run over a woman with his automobile.

A bogus check charge against Mary Tucker was continued to Aug. 27.
